Lancaster Farming

Vol. 47 No. 23 | www.lancasterfarming.com | Four Sections | Saturday, April 6, 2002 | $34.00 Per Year | 75¢ Per Copy

A young farmer directs a six-horse team near the corner of Farmersville Road and Groffdale Church Road near Leola Tuesday afternoon. Temperatures were in the 60s, suitable for working the ground and getting it warm for planting. According to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service, for the week ending March 31, there were 2.1 days suitable for fieldwork. Soil moisture was rated 6 percent very short, 22 percent short, 49 percent adequate, and 23 percent surplus. Farm activities included spring plowing, planting oats, fixing fences, etc. Some areas around the commonwealth received generous amounts of rain but not enough to cover the drought conditions from last year. Spring plowing was 26 percent complete, 19 percent ahead of the previous year and 18 percent ahead of the 5-year average. Ten percent of the oat acreage has been planted, 6 percent more than the 5-year average. Corn and soybean planting have not started at this time. Wheat, barley, and rye were starting to green up.

Farm Bureau To Meet With Legislators

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — An estimated 400 farmers from across the state will travel to Harrisburg Monday, April 8, to meet with lawmakers on issues important to Pennsylvania agriculture.

The farmers are members of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau (PFB) participating in the organization's annual Harrisburg Legislative Conference. PFB is a voluntary organization representing more than 28,000 farm and rural families in 54 local units.

In addition to meeting with legislators, the farmers will be attending an Agriculture Unity Rally co-sponsored by the Pennsylvania State Grange and PennAg Industries Association in the Capitol Rotunda at 3 p.m. The conference concludes with a banquet at 6:30 p.m. to which legislators are invited at the Harrisburg Hilton and Towers. Guy Donaldson, PFB president, will speak at the banquet.

Issues the Farm Bureau members will be discussing with their

BROOKVILLE (Jefferson Co.) — Leland Swenson, former president of the National Farmers Union (NFU), will speak at a banquet hosted by a local branch of the union here April 9.

Swenson served 14 years as NFU president, recently turning the post over to Dave Frederickson of Minnesota.

Rita Shaffer of the Jefferson/Clearfield/Clarion chapter of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union said that Swenson will likely talk about the importance of emerging farm policy to area farmers.

The Farm Bill is being negotiated by a joint House and Senate conference committee in Washington, with a final version expected sometime this month.

A main goal of the local Farmer's Union is to inform both farmers and consumers about agricultural issues, according to Shaffer.

"We're trying to make people aware of what's going on in the Farm Bill," she said.

Shaffer and husband, Wayne, milk about 60 Holsteins and Jerseys near Brookville. Their two grown children, Kelly and Jed,

Lancaster Farming's* annual booklet, A Reference Guide To Animal Health and Housing, is included this issue. The booklet includes articles on heat stress abatement in the summer months, hoof trimming guidelines, a look into a special-design milking parlor, heifer contracting, and a lambing story.

New Bolton Center Dedicates Aquaculture Lab

KENNETT SQUARE (Chester Co.) — Approximately 100 legislators, faculty, staff, and board of overseers of New Bolton Center, along with aquaculture industry representatives gathered to dedicate the Fairchild Aquaculture Laboratory at New Bolton Center, Kennett Square, Wednesday afternoon.

Christine Connelly, chair, board of overseers, said that the building dedication was exciting because "it brings together everybody who was instrumental in the project."

Connelly thanked the leadership and "enthusiastic" donor Robert Fairchild, who is an avid fisherman. "I hope God blesses you, that you catch the big one this season," she said.

According to Alan Kelly, dean of the school of veterinary medicine, the lab is also the result of the work of Leon Weiss, professor and laboratory head of the new facility. Weiss helped to advance "the belief that fish farming is important and that fish are veterinary animals," he said. Weiss has also played a critical role in forming the school's internationally-recognized

Let's 'Spring Ahead'

With the arrival of spring comes Daylight Saving Time, providing additional hours of daylight for farmers.

It's time to "spring ahead" to Daylight Saving Time, which begins tomorrow. We "spring ahead" one hour at 2 a.m. Sunday, April 7.

So turn your clocks ahead one hour before going to bed tonight. Remember, animal feeding and milking schedules need to be adjusted accordingly.

National Broiler Market At A Glance

Atlanta, Ga.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trade sentiment was mixed, but overall ranged about steady to weak. Retail demand was slow to fair with first of the month movement disappointing, but hopes to improve towards the end of the week. Food service was fair to moderate. Supplies of all sizes were at least adequate with heavier weights occasionally long. In the parts structure, trading was light and selective with regular commitments usually sufficient to handle needs. Availability was adequate to ample with wings and leg items more available and often discounted. In production areas, live supplies were moderate. Weights were mostly desirable to at times heavier.

The 12-City Weighted Average Price for 04/01/02 was 52.95, compared to 54.18 last week, and 57.91 a year ago.

National Turkey Market At A Glance

Des Moines, Iowa
Report Supplied By USDA

DOMESTIC MARKET HIGHLIGHTS: The market tone on whole body hens and toms was steady to barely steady. Offerings adequate for trade needs. Demand remains slow as buyers remain cautious and selective. Bulk parts and meats supplies uneven. Demand light at best. Trading centered on light volumes of frozen destrapped tenderloins.

EXPORT MARKET HIGHLIGHTS: Trading and demand light to instances moderate. Trading centered on frozen thigh meat, tom drums and frozen mechanically separated turkey. Most industry members watching the progress of the proposed lifting of the ban on poultry to Russia.

Northeast Broiler Fryer Parts Part I

ATLANTA, GA.
Report Supplied By USDA

Trucklot buying activity was noted as light and typical of midweek trading. Offerings of breast items were at least sufficient. Dark meat cuts were fully adequate. Wings were ample and often available at discounted levels to stimulate sales. Movement through retail and distributive channels was generally fair at best with feature activity generating lukewarm consumer interest. The market tone was barely steady to weak on wings, no better than steady on the balance

The OLD FARMER'S THIS WEEK WITH ALMANAC

90 YEARS AGO...

On April 10 1912, the luxurious R M.S Titanic began its maiden voyage from Southampton, England Just days later, in the hours between April 14 and 15, she struck an iceberg in the North Atlantic and sank About 1,500 passengers drowned in the maritime disaster Few people remember that besides being a luxury liner, the Titanic was also a mail ship The R M S in her name stands for 'Royal Mail Ship' Five postal clerks—three American, two British—were among those who drowned The men were last seen trying to haul the 200 sacks of regis tered letters up to deck level, in hopes that the mail might be salvaged

OPINION

Animal ID System: Will This Work?

Dr. John Enck Jr., state veterinarian and director of the Bureau of Animal Health and Diagnostic Services, spoke recently at the annual meeting of the North East Farm Communicators in Gettysburg.

The topic: a national animal identification plan that could be used as a tool for disease traceback to the farm.

The universal ID system would include lots of information embedded on a computer chip in a simple animal tag: animal name, tag number, age, species, gender, and an immunization history — all accessible electronically. That information could be databased so that, when the animal is processed, the animal's complete physical history would be known. Also, the farm where it was raised can be identified.

"Consumer pressure is key to this industry identification system," said Enck to the ag journalists.

Legislation to make this mandatory across all species could end up in the final Farm Bill.

Now, a typical eartag costs about $5. But what about the cost benefits, especially when it is placed on an $8 chicken? Must every animal, no matter what, be electronically identified and cataloged?

Some states, such as New York, would really love every animal, including those in live bird markets, electronically ID'd. But unless the price on the tags drops dramatically, and until the right computer software to handle the enormous tasks this would entail is developed . . . perhaps a pragmatic solution is still some time away.

To Update Your Commercial Berry Production Guide

Kathy Demchak, Penn State Department of Horticulture, has announced that Penn State's Commercial Berry Production and Pest Management Guide, 2002-2004, should be available by the middle of April.

There are a number of changes in this version. One is that the guide is a 3-year version this time around. This will put it on a production schedule that will make future versions available earlier in the year, with the intention of having them available for sale in time for winter meetings. Additions to the current version are a table of small fruit pesticide chemical and trade names with information on preharvest and re-entry intervals of each one. Brief overviews of protected (high tunnel and greenhouse) culture are included in the strawberry and bramble chapters.

The pesticide table that covers fungicides used on strawberries includes information on the chemical class of each fungicide so that growers can tell which ones have different modes of action for purposes of resistance management. Information on production, pesticides labeled for each crop and rates, and cultivars has been updated.

Information on nurseries and other sources of production supplies has been updated and expanded to include sources of biocontrol supplies, promotional supplies, high tunnels, and more in addition to the information on irrigation, fumigation, row covers and plastic mulch, specialized equipment, and packaging that was already there. Check with your local Penn State Cooperative Extension office to see if the new guides have arrived. You don't want to start the new season without updating your information.

To Manage Soil Fertility For Drought

Dr. Doug Beegle in the Crop and Soil Science Department shares the following principles on managing soil fertility during times of drought. First, plants growing in soils with optimum fertility will be more efficient at utilizing what water is available. Thus, cutting back on fertility in anticipation of a drought is often a false economy.

Be sure your soil test levels are at least in the optimum range. However, lower yields will take up fewer nutrients. Therefore, if you can predict the effect the drought will have on yield, you can reduce maintenance fertility applications. Keep in mind, though, if you cut back and then we get rain, you could end up being deficient.

Nitrogen rates are closely related to expected crop yield. Splitting N applications allows you to wait further into the season to see what the conditions are and what the yield potential might be before you have to decide how much N to apply. Delaying application of N also allows the use of the PSNT to refine your N recommendation. This is especially important where manure is a major component of your N program.

Low pH can have an especially large impact on water use efficiency, because as the soil pH approaches 5.5 or lower, root growth is significantly reduced. Fewer and shorter roots will only be able to extract water from a small soil volume. Ideally, soils should be limed to maintain the pH between 6 and 6.5 for most crops.

Another concern is problems related to taking soil samples in dry, hard soils. Several people have noted greater-than-expected increases in soil P and K and decreases in soil pH in soil samples taken since last fall. This is likely a result of taking shallower soil samples. In no-till or chisel plow fields, especially, there is significant stratification of nutrients and pH. Thus, taking shallow soil samples can result in very different and misleading results.

If the soil is too hard to sample, you would be better off waiting until you can do it right, rather than compromising the accuracy of the results. If you notice that your soil test results are higher in P and K and lower in pH than expected, be suspicious that the results may not be right.

Finally, there is a greater chance for fertilizer injury in drought conditions. All fertilizers are salts, which at high concentrations can injure plants. Generally in our humid climate we get enough rain to keep the salts diluted to a safe level. However, in drought conditions, this may not be true. This is of greatest concern with starter fertilizers because we are intentionally concentrating fertilizer near the seed.

The rule of thumb is that the total N + K2O should not exceed 70 pounds per acre for normal 2-inch by 2-inch starter placement. If fertilizer is placed directly with the seed, the total N + K2O should not exceed 15 pounds per acre. It is especially critical that we do not exceed these levels in drought conditions. Also, related to starter fertilizer management, the recommendations that urea should not be used in starter fertilizer and DAP should be used with caution are more critical in drought conditions.

A BUTTERFLY NAMED 'HOPE'

Background Scripture:
Romans 8.
Devotional Reading:
Romans 8:1-11.

Probably all of us have heard of the legendary Pandora's Box. Many of us forget its all-important ending.

Pandora was a lovely bride sent by Zeus to Epimetheus. One day, Mercury brought her a small golden chest that, he said, was hers to enjoy — but under no circumstances should she open it. However, her curiosity got the better of her and she pried it open, just a little. Out flew a swarm of nasty insects stinging everyone in sight, poisoning their victims with suspicion, fear, hatred, and malice.

Epimetheus and Pandora quarreled at this turn of events, but eventually they heard a sweet voice calling from the chest: "Let me out. Let me soothe your pain." So they fearfully opened the box again and a radiant butterfly flew out. As it lighted on them, their pains were healed. The butterfly's name was Hope.

The bright prospects and horizons of our youth may all too soon be dimmed by the poison of suspicion, fear, hatred, and malice. Their wounds can be healed only if we will have the faith to open our lives to the butterfly named Hope.

Never Lose God

But hope in or for what? Theologian John Bright reminds us that the prophet Jeremiah was called by God to bring a message of hope to captive Israel at a time when there seemed to be nothing to back up that promise. But Jeremiah never lost hope, Bright says, because he never lost God. The source and body of our hope are God.

In Romans 8, Paul outlines our Christian Hope. First, he tells us that "the sufferings of this present time are not worth comparing with the glory that is to be revealed to us" (8:18). At this time, Christians were suffering for their faith. In our country today, we are not persecuted, but that doesn't mean we suffer any less; just more subtly. The Gospel could cost us the respect of our friends, neighbors, and employers. But this pales in comparison with what lies ahead for us in the life beyond.

Second, whatever we do suffer binds us more closely to Christ. Remember, we "suffer with him in order that we may also be glorified with him" (8:17).

A Foretaste Now

Third, even though the fulfillment is just beyond our sight, we can experience a sample of that hope now, what Paul calls the "first fruits of the Spirit" (8:23). This is much like John speaking of the eternal life which the believer can experience both before and after death.

Fourth, not only will we be transformed, but all creation as well. The whole cosmos will become what God intended for it to be even before he created it. We will live transformed lives in a transformed existence (18:19-21).

Fifth, although we may feel too weak to last through the trials of this life, God's Spirit comes to help us in the midst of them. Because we don't know what God does, we may be uncertain how to pray sometimes. No problem, for "the Spirit helps us in our weakness" and "intercedes for us with sighs too deep for words" (8:26,27).

Sixth, while we may not be able to see any plan or purpose in our lives or the world about us, there is a good purpose for which God has designed us and the world to fulfill. "We know that in everything God works for good with those who love him, who are called according to his purpose" (8:18:28).

Seventh, despite all those things that seem to be against us, thwarting us in all our efforts, we must always remember, "If God is for us, who is against us?" God is for us and God will prevail.

Finally, there is "nothing . . . nor anything . . . able to separate us from the love of God in Christ Jesus our Lord" (18:35-39) The only sure thing in life is God's love in Christ, and that can make us "more than conquerors." So, let us listen for and respond to the voice that calls, "Let me out. Let me soothe your pain." It is God's gift of Hope.

Weekly Dairy Market Outlook

Ken Bailey
Penn State
March 29, 2002
MARKETS CLOSED FOR EASTER/PASSOVER

- Market activity light this week.
- Cheese and butter prices unchanged.
- Commercial disappearance numbers strange.

The dairy markets at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange were closed March 29 in observance of Good Friday. Markets reopened Monday, April 1.

The short trading week didn't offer much in the way of price information. Butter and cheese prices at the Chicago Mercantile Exchange were unchanged. Blocks were about $1.23 per pound and barrels were about $1.20 per pound. Grade AA butter prices were unchanged at $1.2250-$1.2350 per pound.

USDA reported numbers for commercial disappearance for milk and dairy products from November 2001-January 2002. The numbers were strange. Butter consumption during this period was up 11.9 percent. This is very strong. Looking at retail butter prices over a similar time period (December 2001-February 2002), prices were up about 14 percent. This is strange, I thought. Normally, consumption drops when retail prices rise.

Here is what I pieced together. First, wholesale butter prices spiked in the fall of 2000, rising to more than $1.80 per pound by the first week in December. This had an adverse effect on consumption of butter, particularly at the food-service level. As for retail, it was likely that retailers did not pass on all of the higher wholesale costs, since butter sold for less than $3 per pound.

Now fast forward to November 2001-January 2002. Wholesale prices for butter fell considerably from the summer levels, from more than $2 per pound in August to a low of $1.24 by the middle of December. Retail butter prices fell from summer levels, but not nearly as much as wholesale prices. The retail price of butter in major urban markets fell from $3.70 per pound in September 2001 to $3.28 by February 2002. While retail customers faced some reduction in prices by the fall, food-service customers likely got a bigger discount because of lower wholesale prices. Overall, because of lower prices, butter consumption increased during this period relative to a year ago.

Unlike cheese, butter consumption is very sensitive to wholesale and retail prices.

National Feeder Cattle Weekly Summary

St. Joseph, Mo.
March 29, 2002
Report Supplied By USDA

NATIONAL FEEDER CATTLE SUMMARY for week ending Mar. 29.

This report reflects a newly expanded format. Receipts from the previous format will be available for one year for comparison purposes.

RECEIPTS: Auctions: this week 202,800, last week 234,400. Direct: this week 46,100, last week 49,800. Video/Internet this week 33,000, last week 13,100. Total: 281,900, last week 297,400. Old Format: this week: 140,100, last week 149,000, last year 196,000.

Compared to last week, feeder and stocker cattle prices were very uneven. Certain areas showed strength early in the week and pressure late in the week and in other areas the flipside was true. For example; the market at the Stockyards in Oklahoma City was surprisingly strong on Monday, but at other auctions across the High Plains later on in the week prices turned lower again. Many of these salebarns had the same buyers and/or orders sitting in the stands. In the Southeast, prices started out much lower and then rebounded toward the end of the week. For the most part, losers outweighed gainers and a lower undertone still looms over the cattle market. No one seems to have a handle on which way this thing is going to go, but there are plenty of opinions in rural coffee shops and bars.

Doomsayers say there is a lot more room to go down than there is on the upside. The June and August CME futures contracts are trading in the mid-sixties and there is a large glut of unsold cattle that will be coming off of graze-out wheat in a few weeks. However, the optimists also have a decent argument. They say that the spring rains have started and things will green-up and get better. It does seem that the packers have let themselves get awful close to the knife, giving up some precious leverage to the feedlots. This was evident on Good Friday, when fat cattle prices turned the tide, after considerable trading on Thursday. Prices ended up finishing at mostly 71.00 and 113.00 dressed, after it looked like the market had settled on 70.00 and 112.00. This is very unusual, especially on a holiday week. All of this uncertainty has kept direct feeder cattle buyers out of the country as they don't want to insult their customers with the bids they are carrying. This is causing a lot of sellers to gamble on the salebarn market, which currently could be several dollars one way or the other. Surely there is something that will stabilize this cattle market soon. Wait, "can't you smell that smell" it's your neighbor cranking up his barbeque grill just in time. This week's reported auction volume included 53 pct over 600 lbs and 47 pct heifers.

NOTE: Comments on the cattle market only are printed here. The full report with prices is available online at www.ams.usda.gov/mnreports/SJ_LS850.txt

IT'S HERE! THE WORLD'S FIRST HYBRID ALFALFA!

The History
Hybri-Force™ - 400 took 24 years to develop with Dairyland Seed's msSunstra™ hybrid alfalfa technology.

The Hybrid
State trials show 8% yield advantage; on-farm test strips have shown as much as 15% advantage.
In addition, expect:
- Hybrid vigor
- Excellent forage quality
- Distinctive rapid re-growth
- Tolerates early harvest

The Future
Just as hybrid corn technology greatly increased productivity, you can expect msSunstra™ hybrid alfalfa technology to revolutionize forage production in the 21st century. Call for details.

What makes John Deere Rotary MoCos better?

Shear Genius.

A smarter way to protect.
Each disk is protected with a patented shearhub for the best disk protection in the industry. Should you hit an obstruction, the splines shear, leaving the inner gears protected. Replacing a shearhub is far less costly and much easier than fixing internal components

A smarter way to harvest hay.
Disks rotate toward the center of the cutting platform to lift the crop and cut cleaner And since knives usually rotate toward each other, streaking is dramatically reduced or eliminated. All of the hay goes into the windrow.

A smarter design.
Each diagonal-cut module can slide in and out without the cutterbar being removed. The common oil reservoir, with up to 11 quart capacity, delivers plenty of cooling lubrication. Plus, the vented cutterbar design means less heat build-up, a big reliability advantage.

Brawn to go with the brains.
The low-profile design cuts closer and at a flatter angle. And the cutterbar is made from high-strength nodular iron, making it stronger and more impact-resistant than grey iron. This cutterbar has the strength to resist anything the field throws at it.

Smart choices in conditioning.
Get the conditioning you want with exclusive urethane roll or thorough impeller conditioning (steel rolls also available on 946 and 956 models). Your hay quality – and productivity – will soar.

John Deere has been making rotary MoCos for more than 20 years. The 6 Series MoCos are built with the same legendary quality and reliability found in all John Deere machines. So stop by your local John Deere dealership today and learn more about the smarter way to cut and condition hay. The genius in you will appreciate it.

Daily National Grain Market Summary

St. Joseph, MO
Report Supplied By USDA

Wheat bids were firm to slightly higher as carryover strength from Tuesdays China purchase lent support Corn bids slipped lower in reaction to increased farmer selling of old crop supplies and lack of fresh export interest. Soybean bids fell sharply lower Tuesday and technical selling on the Board sent them plummeting. Continued favorable harvest weather in South America remains a large weakening factor.

However, slow export business and indications that China may not be purchasing as much US soybeans as earlier expected, hammered bean bids.

Wheat steady to 1 cent higher Corn 2 to 3 cents lower. Sorghum 4 to 5 cents lower. Soybeans 10 to 13 cents lower.

Farm Bureau

• Water resource management — At least seven water resource management bills have been introduced in the General Assembly. Agriculture in Pennsylvania is highly dependent on water resources. None of the bills proposed so far contain provisions needed to protect farmers from possible unreasonable and severe restrictions in water use. Nor do they give agriculture priority in the event of water shortages.

• Illegal or discriminatory local ordinances — Numerous townships have passed local ordinances designed to prohibit or strongly discourage farmers from changing or expanding their operations. These ordinances exceed and ignore state laws establishing uniformity in the regulation of agriculture in Pennsylvania. Farmers who decide to challenge these ordinances in court subject themselves to expensive legal fees. Farm Bureau supports S.B. 826, which would require townships to reimburse legal costs to farmers who successfully challenge their ordinances in court.

• Humane society police officers — The state Supreme Court has ruled that a humane society officer appointed by the court to enforce animal cruelty laws in one county may enforce the laws anywhere in the state. The ruling struck down part of a 1994 law that gave local communities a way to protect themselves from humane society officers who abused their enforcement authority. Farm Bureau supports S.B. 1302, which would create an independent board within the state Department of Agriculture to regulate private humane society enforcement officers. The board could grant enforcement power to humane society officers or revoke it if misconduct or abuse of power is committed.

• Funding for agriculture — The governor's budget proposal for the next fiscal year contains several funding cuts which affect agriculture. Instead of the proposed five percent budget cuts for agriculture research and extension at Penn State and for the School of Veterinary Medicine at the University of Pennsylvania, Farm Bureau wants funding increased by about 3.25 percent for these important programs. In addition, full funding is needed for a program that helps farmers insure their crops against weather disasters.

• Other Issues — Farm Bureau supports S.B. 1253, which would provide grants to encourage production of alternative fuels and ethanol in Pennsylvania and would refund state liquid fuels taxes for three years to distributors of ethanol fuel. The bill would also require replacement over a three-year time span of the fuel additive methyl tertiary butyl ether (MTBE) with ethanol.

To help reduce lawsuit abuse, Farm Bureau supports S.B. 406, which would give the defendant in a frivolous lawsuit the right to sue the attorney or law firm representing the plaintiff in the lawsuit. Farm Bureau supports H.B. 236 and H.B. 936, which would reduce the burden of state inheritance taxes on families.

Because Act 50 of 1998, intended to provide for local tax reform, has only been adopted by five of Pennsylvania's 501 school districts, Farm Bureau is asking lawmakers to come up with new legislation to address the problem of adequately financing school districts without imposing unfair property tax burdens on farmers.

Farm Bureau supports H.B. 2398 and S.B. 1045, which would make farmers eligible for low-interest loans under the state's Small Business First Program.

Enrolled In CREP?

Ann Mease
CREP Outreach
Natural Resource Conservation Office

Would you like to be making $100-$160 per acre for the next 10-15 years from your marginal cropland and streamside pasture, regardless of weather conditions or market fluctuations?

You could be if you enroll your eligible land in the Pennsylvania Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program (CREP). However, the program has an acreage cap, statewide, and the time to ask for more information or enroll your land is now.

CREP is a federal/state partnership with the goal of enrolling 100,000 acres of highly erodible cropland and streamside pastureland in conservation cover plantings. The program is entirely voluntary and works to reduce soil erosion, improve water quality, improve wildlife habitat, and increase farm income on marginal farmland.

What land is eligible for CREP? Any cropland or marginal pasture within 180 feet of a stream is eligible. Highly erodible cropland greater than 180 feet from a stream may also be eligible and buffer strips, grassed waterways, and wetlands may be enrolled on any cropland.

How would I benefit? CREP pays you to place land into conservation cover. You would be reimbursed for up to 100 percent of the cost of establishing cover, including the cost of streambank fencing and crossings. Cover may include native warm season grasses, cool season grasses and legume mixtures and, along streams, native trees and shrubs. You would be paid a yearly rental rate between $98-$164 per acre, depending on soil type and practices implemented, as well as an annual maintenance payment. Depending on the practice, additional one-time bonus payments may also be included.

How do I enroll or find out more? If the current statewide enrollment rates continue, CREP projects that it will fulfill its allotment of 100,000 acres by this spring. Don't wait until it is too late to find out whether the CREP opportunity is right for you.

For more information, contact Ann Mease, CREP Outreach, at the Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) office at (717) 755-2996, ext. 110 or e-mail Thistlebrook@juno.com.

Northwest Savings Bank To Open 5th York County Office

YORK (York Co.) — Northwest Savings Bank is opening a new, full-service banking facility at the intersection of Roosevelt Avenue and Route 30 in the late spring of this year.

Formerly a branch office of Fulton Bank, Northwest Savings Bank's new Roosevelt Avenue Office will be its third office in metropolitan York and its fifth banking location in York County.

In making the announcement, Lynn Baker, region manager, said, "It is a real pleasure to say we're opening this new office to better serve our York customers, both old and new, with the convenience, full-service banking and personal, home town service they want and deserve."

Baker explained that the new office, located at 1700 Roosevelt Avenue, will mark another milestone in Northwest's service to York County, which, in one form or another, began in 1915.

Founded in 1896, Northwest Savings Bank specializes in serving smaller communities in 33 counties in Pennsylvania and Ohio. With $3.9 billion in assets, the company operates 118 community banking locations, plus full-service brokerage plus Investment Management and Trust services. The stock of Northwest Bancorp, Inc., Northwest Savings Bank's parent company, trades on the Nasdaq system under the symbol "NWSB."

New Bolton Center Dedicates Aquaculture Lab

"Aquavet" program 25 years ago.

Sam Hayes, agriculture secretary, offered words of appreciation for "the men and women who professionally dedicate themselves every day to providing, propagating, and protecting animal resources," he said.

Hayes noted that the theme for agriculture week, observed a little while ago, was "harmony in the world."

"We cannot have harmony in the world if we do not have good agriculture," he said. "As we look around the world today, many times the discord, the foment, has been generated by a people unable to clothe and feed themselves . . . we must find new ways to generate new food and one of those ways is to look to the water and the organisms in that water."

Manuel Stematakis, Delaware River Port Authority (DRPA), spoke of the partnership of the organization with the school. In 1997 the DRPA awarded a grant to study the feasibility of cutting-edge, closed-system fish farming. Over the past five years, he said, the DRPA has invested about $1 million to promote aquaculturre.

The research is important, according to Stematakis, to develop technology to make the industry economically feasible. He sees aquaculture "as an opportunity for the region." Research could help this area, the country, and the world provide a stable source of food.

The center has also formed a partnership with Cheyney University to advance urban aquaculture by developing a "world-class aquaculture curriculum," according to Alfonso Jackson, minority business development agency.

Students who want to start their own business of raising fish or plants will be able to develop marketing studies and business plans or be involved in field service programs.

According to Robert Fairchild, board of overseers, the project is "the beginning of research and discovery. . . our work here will someday benefit the people of Africa, teaching them to grow food in areas that would otherwise be inhospitable.

"I hope that this building enriches our lives and brings us to new vistas," he said.

His daughter, Suzanne Fairchild, gave a color commentary about her father, who often took his four daughters fishing.

Building construction began in May 2001. Each of the 16 tanks hold 200 fish. The facility will house mainly hybrid striped bass, a popular farm species which grows well and is well known in the area, according to Chris Weaver, systems manager and research associate.

Nutrition will be the focus of the research. Researchers will, for example, test the feasibility of different protein sources to substitute for fish meal, which comes from "trash fish." Fish meal may be in short supply in the future, said Weaver.

Future studies include methods of preventing and controlling infectious diseases in the fish.

The aquaculture program, part of the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine, will be housed in a 2,500 square-foot building. The facilities contain four groups of four 330-gallon tanks, each five feet in diameter and 2½ feet deep. Each group of tanks has its own filtration and water system. Additionally the building has a laboratory for researchers to test water samples on site.

Emergency Loan Program More Accessible To Farmers

MISSOULA, Mont. — Agriculture Secretary Ann M. Veneman recently announced new rules that will make it easier and faster for farmers who have suffered losses because of natural disasters to get federal loans. Local Farm Service Agency offices will process all new Emergency Loan Program applications from farmers under these rules, which are effective immediately.

"FSA farm loan employees initiated these changes to make the program more responsive to all farmers, from those who raise livestock to those who grow traditional crops like corn, wheat, and soybeans," said Veneman. "Farmers can now borrow 100 percent of production losses rather than the previous 80 percent, and they will have to go through fewer steps to apply for a loan. These are the most significant changes to the program in more than 15 years."

Veneman made the announcement during a trip to Montana where she met with farmers and ranchers in Missoula with Congressman Denny Rehberg. The Secretary also attended a rural development conference in Bozeman with Senator Conrad Burns and Governor Judy Martz.

Farmers now can borrow the full amount of their losses, up to the maximum $500,000 outstanding balance. This reduces the need for farmers to apply for additional assistance through other USDA loan programs. The change will benefit borrowers by decreasing the number of loan applications they must complete.

In addition, USDA will use established production information when available, rather than requiring borrowers to submit additional records to calculate qualifying production losses. USDA also has simplified steps local FSA staff must follow to determine applicant eligibility and loan amounts. These changes will reduce paperwork for borrowers and shorten loan processing time.

The program also will be more accessible to livestock producers. In the past, these producers, unlike farmers who grow crops like corn, soybeans and wheat, had a difficult time qualifying for emergency loans. USDA has updated loss determination methods, originally developed with crop production in mind, to accommodate the different production levels and margins of livestock production.

The Emergency Loan Program provides about $150 million annually to more than 2,500 farmers who cannot obtain commercial credit.

NFU President To Visit Jefferson County

Wayne first joined the Farmers Union in 1973 and serves as president of the Jefferson/Clearfield/Clarion chapter.

Swenson was a key player in shaping the Senate version of the Farm Bill, according to Larry Breech, president of the Pennsylvania Farmers Union. Among Senate bill provisions is a conservation program aimed at rewarding farmers for sound practices.

"The conservation title (in the Senate Farm Bill) is a completely different paradigm," Breech said.

Delegates at NFU's 100th anniversary convention in early March adopted farm policy initiatives that will guide the organization over the next year. They asked for swift completion of the Farm Bill to assist farmers in the 2002 crop year.

The NFU expressed clear support for a Farm Bill that:

- Raises loan rates to the level provided for in the Senate bill.
- Updates acreage bases and commodity yields.
- Includes a prohibition on packer ownership of livestock.
- Provides a nationwide dairy safety net.

Leland Swenson

- Implements payment limit reforms that target benefits to family-sized operations.

Breech noted that the NFU and the American Farm Bureau Federation have joined together in support of several policies including country of origin labeling and a ban on meat packer ownership of livestock operations.

In addition to addressing the need for a new Farm Bill, NFU delegates recommitted that the organization pursue trade initiatives that address a wide array of challenges that face American family farmers and ranchers.

Delegates also adopted policy initiatives calling for emergency economic assistance, renewable energy development, analysis of water use issues in western states, and consolidation and mergers in Internet and media services to rural areas.

The April 9 banquet will take place at the Roseville Grange, Rt. 322 just west of Brookville. Starting time is 7:30 p.m.

Shearer Tops Grain Sorghum Yield Contest

DES MOINES, Iowa — Robert D. Shearer of Mount Joy, Pa., was recently recognized as a 2001 National Grain Sorghum Producers (NGSP) Yield and Management Contest winner. The award presentation was made in February during the annual Sorghum Industry Conference in San Francisco.

The 16th annual NGSP Yield and Management Contest recognized 120 state winners and 17 national winners in six divisions: non-irrigated and irrigated conventional tillage, no-till non-irrigated, mulch-till non-irrigated, reduced-till irrigated and national food-grade.

As a five-time NGSP yield contestant, Shearer placed first in the state conventional-till non-irrigated division. Pioneer® brand 83G66 gave him the winning grain sorghum yield of 121.02 bushels per acre.

"I selected Pioneer 83G66 for its yield potential," said Shearer, who farms with his wife, Doreen, and their children, Bobby, 17; Michael, 14 and Ashley, 11. The Shearers also grow corn and wheat and raise finishing pigs.

Not all fields have the same production capacity, so management decisions including seed selection and irrigation play a large role in determining grain sorghum yield, says Linda Wyss, sorghum product manager at Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc.

"Pioneer is proud to recognize the Robert Shearer as a yield contest winner," says Wyss. "We're also proud that our products won 60 percent of the awards in the 2001 NGSP yield contest, which is another reason why Pioneer is the leading brand of sorghum in the United States."

REPLACEMENT HEIFERS — NEEDS AND AVAILABILITY, COSTS AND RETURNS

Glenn A. Shirk
Extension Dairy
Agent, Lancaster

Heifers are a major cost of producing milk. They also are our herds of the future. Because of this, many progressive producers like to get their heifers to calving weight by about 23 months of age. This can reduce the cost of getting them to calving age, plus it also provides a quicker return on their heifer investment.

Many producers also like to upgrade their herds with genetically superior heifers, and they like to have a few extra heifers to merchandise for top dollar.

The number of replacements needed and their costs are affected by a number of factors, such as deaths, cattle culled, cattle sold for dairy purposes, age at first calving, changes in herd size, etc.

The number of replacements needed nearly doubles as you move from a 23-month calving interval and a 25 percent cull rate to a 27-month calving interval and a 40 percent cull rate. For a 100-cow herd, the size of the replacement herd needed can vary from 56 to 106, as shown in Table 1. That also means you will need almost twice as much feed, twice as much labor, and twice as much housing, all of which increases the cost of producing milk.

The more heifers you need for replacements the fewer you have left to merchandise; that can be a tremendous loss of income, especially at today's heifer prices. With a 14-month calving interval and a 30 percent cull rate, that could be as much as $10,000 to $11,000 per year in a 100-cow herd that has 7 extra heifers for sale (see Tables 2 and 3).

If the cull rate, in this situation, climbs to 40 percent, it may be impossible to maintain herd size without purchasing some replacements. Instead of selling heifers for a "nice chunk of change," you now find yourself in a situation where you have to "cough up some dough" to buy a few replacements, or hang on to more of your problem cows and "poor do-ers."

Some key questions are, what are your replacements costing you per CWT of milk shipped? Are you cashing in on the opportunity to merchandise some of your heifers and cows at dairy value rather than cull value?

Table 4 compares some costs and returns. It shows that heifer costs increase about $130 per month when calving age is delayed. They can also vary as much as $1 to $2 per CWT of milk shipped. The cost doubles as you move from a 23-month calving age and 25 percent cull rate to a 27-month calving age and 40 percent cull rate.

As you might expect, a 4,000-pound difference in milk production per cow can also affect the cost of producing milk by $0.25 to $0.50 or more per CWT. Calving at 28 months of age rather than 24 could mean a 4-month delay on about $1,000 of income per heifer; if you calve 30 heifers per year, that's a 4-month wait before you have access to about $30,000 of milk income.

You can calculate these results for your own herd on a spreadsheet that can be downloaded from the Capitol Region Dairy Team Website at http://capitaldairy.cas.psu.edu/.

Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association Elects Officers

PHILADELPHIA — The Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association board of directors recently elected officers and welcomed two new members to the board.

R. Steven Graybeal, Peach Bottom, was elected chairman of the 14-member board. Graybeal, who has been farming for 33 years, said he strongly believes in dairy promotion and its effectiveness in increasing milk sales.

Since 1984, when the national dairy promotion program went into effect, per capita consumption of all dairy products has increased by 11 percent. Total milk sales have increased by 33 percent.

"The dairy checkoff program is focused on increasing dairy product demand as well as enhancing the image of dairy products and the dairy industry," Graybeal said. "Our responsibility, as dairy promotion board members, is to assure that this program is managed effectively and efficiently."

Also elected as Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association officers were David Noss, Port Royal, vice chairman; Scott Kreider, Quarryville, secretary; and Jerrel Heatwole, Greenwood, Del., treasurer. Jeff Moore, Centreville, Md., and Paul Broering, Henry, Ohio, were named as new board members.

The Mid-Atlantic Dairy Association is a regional promotion organization funded by dairy farmers to increase dairy product demand in the Mid-Atlantic region through advertising, communications, and nutrition education programs.

Turner Dairy Commits To New Food Science Building

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Turner Dairy Farms, Inc., has committed $50,000 to name a laboratory in memory of the late James G. Turner in the new Food Science Building, to be built on Penn State's University Park campus.

The James G. Turner Dairy Products Microbiology and Characterization Laboratory will be part of the 98,000-square-foot Food Science Building, which is slated to be completed by spring 2005 at an estimated cost of $22 million.

"Dairy products are a critical component of the commonwealth's food industry, and this laboratory will help us continue to provide cutting-edge research to support dairy-related businesses," said John D. Floros, head of Penn State's food science department. "We are deeply grateful to the Turner family for sharing our vision, and for facilitating our future efforts in this area."

Research to be conducted at the laboratory will examine the effects of processing variables on ice cream structure and the effects of preprocessing treatments on the survival of beneficial bacteria in dairy foods, among other studies.

The lab also will support activities such as short courses, workshops and technical assistance for Pennsylvania food processing companies.

Carlisle Black And Whites Top Spring Show

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Holstein exhibitors made a strong appearance at the 49th Annual Pennsylvania Holstein Association Spring Show here late last week, leading a total of 263 animals through the ring.

Cows bred by Tower Vue Holsteins and Fountain Farm, both of Carlisle, were three of the four top animals selected by judge Michael Stiles.

David and Kathy Walton, and children Craig, Betsy, and Scott manage Tower Vue and Fountain Farm together with Kathy's family, the Thompsons.

Youth reserve champion went to Emily Stuff for her aged cow, Walnut Stuff Jed Starbrite.

Owned by Peter Kennett and Steve Wagner, fall yearling Tower Vue Mandel Eshe was selected as junior champion. She was bred by Betsy Walton.

Reserve junior champion went to Doug and Jennifer Boop for J&K Durham Roxy-ET, a summer yearling less than 10 months of age.

Benjamin Cashell, 12, won youth champion with his winter yearling heifer Ro-Meyer Lillie Spirit. Quinn Cashell, 9, led spring yearling Roc-Hil-Val Durham Fancy to the reserve championship.

Benjamin and Quinn, along with brother Chase, age 6, help feed calves and tend show heifers on NaPaul Farm, owned by parents Paul and Nadene Cashell. They keep a herd of about 400 cows and farm 700 acres.

Lancaster Farming was proud to sponsor the fall yearling class trophy, won by Peter Kenett and Steve Wagner. The same heifer went on to be named junior champion of the show.

Drought Conditions Monitoring Website Available To Public

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — A new U.S. Geological Survey (USGS) Website showing precipitation, stream flows, groundwater levels, and the Palmer Drought Severity Index is available to the public and Pennsylvania water managers.

DEP relies upon these parameters, among others, to monitor water supply drought conditions. This new Website is available at http://pa.water.usgs.gov/monitor/.

The four parameters displayed on the Website are averaged over time and are used only as indicators of the four stages of drought that Pennsylvania uses for drought management — normal, watch, warning, and emergency. Actual declarations of any particular drought stage in a given county are based upon a review of these parameters in combination with other considerations. No one parameter or combination of particular parameters automatically establishes a stage of drought.

At the end of February, the 90-day departure from average precipitation in three of Pennsylvania's 67 counties was greater than 45 percent below average and, in 22 counties, fell between 35 and 45 percent below average. Precipitation during late fall and winter usually replenishes the groundwater supply which, in turn, contributes flow to rivers during times of low flow. Recharge to groundwater has been minimal this year, and there is little water in storage from snowpack or ice to replenish the supply.

Record low flows at streamflow stations and water levels at observation wells occurred in February. These sites were located primarily in the Delaware and lower Susquehanna River Basins, according to John Nantz, information specialist, at the USGS office in New Cumberland, Cumberland County. Slight streamflow increases resulted from March 2-3 and 12-13 rainfalls, but flows returned to near record low levels within days.

Tracking streamflow and groundwater levels is essential to monitoring drought severity and recovery. Short-term rainfall will improve soil moisture and aid farmers, but only adequate rainfall over a period of time can replenish groundwater and streamflow and fill reservoirs. Together, these sources supply water to all public and private users throughout Pennsylvania.

USDA/FSA Agents Tour Lancaster Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program Farms

ANDY ANDREWS
Editor

NEW PROVIDENCE (Lancaster Co.) — There aren't many programs that allow farm landowners a chance to install an environmentally protective system with a return of 165 percent of cost.

And that return can be on marginal cropland or streamside pasture and is not affected by dismal growing seasons.

What is this program?

It's called the Conservation Reserve Enhancement Program, or CREP.

In the past, participation has been slow for conservation reserve programs for Lancaster County. From a few acres, the CREP program for the county now encompasses 1,000 acres, and "for Lancaster county, that's quite a lot," said Bill Foose, conservation chief with the USDA Farm Service Agency (FSA) in Harrisburg.

Foose spoke to more than two dozen FSA agents from the Northeast and 14 other states Wednesday afternoon at several Lancaster County sites.

The agents took a bus tour of CREP-participating farms in the New Providence area during a segment of a regional meeting conducted mid-week at the Eden Resort Inn in Lancaster.

Foose noted the Pennsylvania CREP began in 1998. About 20 counties in the lower Susquehanna River basin are now participating in the program, designed primarily to protect water quality for the Chesapeake Bay watershed. CREP also improves wildlife and fisheries' habitat, reduces soil erosion, and increases farm income on marginal land.

There are various partners in the effort, funded through USDA, including Farm Bureau, wildlife agencies, and other organizations.

Riparian buffers protect about 6,700 miles of streams in the region. The program also includes a land set-aside payment with a rate of $170-$180 per acre in Lancaster County alone. That payment far exceeds the county's typical land lease rate of $100-$150 per acre. The "only way to get participants is by offering those kinds of incentives," Foose said.

In the county alone, Foose noted, since CREP's inception, Lancaster went from two to 180 contracts. The program includes a buffer and a wildlife component to be successful, with an average contract acreage in Lancaster of about 21.

The state contributes about 20 percent to the $219 million, 20-county program.

Statewide, about 37,000 acres are enrolled in contracts, ranging from 10-15 years duration, with an additional 60,000 acres in set-aside.

At the Eric and Amy Feilmeire farm near New Providence, 12 acres are under CREP, with about 11 acres in switchgrass and wildflower mixes, and rest in conifers/hardwoods. The switchgrass/wildflower mix was planted in April 2001. Also, native maple trees were planted in the fall of last year, using biodegradable plastic tubes with nets to keep birds out.

Josh Homyack, Lancaster CREP contact and Natural Resource Conservation Service (NRCS) habitat specialist, spoke about the work of the Feilmeire farm. After speaking, observers noticed two pheasants exit from the growth, despite the windy, cold rain that fell.

USDA/FSA agents and others took part in a special CREP tour to Lancaster County farms after meeting at the Eden Resort Inn, Lancaster, Wednesday.

Under CREP, landowners can't harvest the warm-season grasses. The grasses, however, can be mowed after nesting season but early enough for winter cover regrowth.

Other farms on the tour included Larry Mylin, Lancaster and Roxanne Todd, Lancaster.

For more information about CREP, for those who live in Lancaster and Chester counties, contact Homyack at (717) 396-9423. For additional statewide contact information, call the Pennsylvania FSA, Harrisburg, at (717) 237-2114.

Maryland Sheep, Wool Festival May 4-5 In Howard County

WEST FRIENDSHIP, Md. — Members of the Maryland Sheep Breeders Association (MSBA) are busy planning for their 2002 Maryland Sheep and Wool Festival May 4-5 at the Howard County Fairgrounds.

Admission and parking is free. The public is invited to observe sheep shearing, sheep shows, spinning, weaving, working sheepdogs, gourmet lamb cooking, and demonstrations, and take part in workshops concerning all facets of the sheep industry.

Visitors are welcomed to stop and chat with exhibitors, vendors, and committee members. There will be lots of food, live music, and craft booths for shopping.

Chairman of this year's festival is Gwen Handler. Tommy Mullinix is MSBA president.

Lancaster County Holstein Breeders Elect Officers

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — Lancaster County Holstein Breeders board of directors met March 5 to elect new officers and assign committees for the coming year.

Plans are under way for the County Black and White Show to be conducted July 18 with the 4-H show. Details will follow in the coming months. This year a special invitation has been extended to the Chester and York County Holstein Breeders to participate in our show.

The Pennsylvania Holstein Association will have two heifer sales this year and is looking for good cattle. The sale dates are April 26 and Aug. 30.

If you are interested in consigning an animal, contact Rick Hess, or David Lentz at the PHA office. The sales will be conducted at the Holstein Farm in Middletown.

Dauphin Extension Opens Harrisburg Satellite Office

DAUPHIN (Dauphin Co.) — To improve its service to Dauphin County families, Penn State Cooperative Extension has opened a new satellite office in downtown Harrisburg in the County Administrative Building at 2 S. Second St.

Resources available at the extension offices in the Dauphin County Agriculture and Natural Resources Center in Dauphin will be available also at the satellite location. They include material on agriculture, home gardening, youth development projects, food and nutrition, healthy home ideas, money management tips, parenting skills information, and child care training and information. A noon lecture series is bring planned.

Master Gardeners will be available at the satellite office on Tuesdays and Thursdays from 10 a.m.-2 p.m. to answer questions about trees, flowers, lawn, garden, soil, insect or disease problems, and other questions.

The office is open Monday through Friday, 10 a.m.-2 p.m. Phone (717) 221-4348. More information is available at the Website, http://dauphin.extension.psu.edu.

Stunted Orchardgrass Seen

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Recent reports from various parts of Maryland describe yellowed or brown patches in orchardgrass, often circular in shape and quite extensive throughout fields, according to Galen Dively, University of Maryland entomology department.

Upon examination, plants are severely stunted and actually appear to be dead above ground but the root systems and crowns are still alive in most cases.

So far, two causal agents have been identified, including white grubs and winter grain mites. Aphids also have been detected in affected fields, but the low numbers present and absence of signs of past aphid activity suggest that they probably are not the major cause.

Other causal factors, such as plant diseases, have not been ruled out, and it may turn out that a combination of pest organisms and plant conditions are responsible for the orchardgrass problems.

In any case, it is important to check damaged areas in affected fields to try to link the injury to a particular pest or pests.

Paul Craig, Penn State crop agent, also reported several calls this week from Franklin County about unidentified problems in orchard grass.

Md. & Va. Milk Cooperative Honors Members, Plans Future

DAVE LEFEVER
Lancaster Farming Staff

HAGERSTOWN, Md. — The Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative hosted its 82nd annual meeting here Wednesday.

Jack Hardesty, president, and Allen O'Hara, general manager, presented awards to outstanding members and spoke on the future course of the cooperative. Their theme was "Moving Forward Through Commitment."

After last year's failed merger proposal with Land O' Lakes East and two Southcentral milk cooperatives, Maryland and Virginia leaders are considering other options to remain competitive in a changing marketplace.

Hardesty reported that a new Southern Marketing Agency, Inc. is being formed that would link Maryland and Virginia with several other cooperatives to the south, including Arkansas Dairy Cooperative, Dairy Farmers of America, Lonestar Milk Producers, and Southeast Milk, Inc.

The goal of such an alliance would be to increase Maryland and Virginia's share of Class 1 (fluid) milk sales, allow more efficient market balancing, and increase over-order premiums for members.

"The new Southern Marketing Agency will provide increased market stability and market access for our member milk in the Federal Order 5 and Federal Order 7 (southern) areas," Hardesty said.

Maryland and Virginia is also talking with Dairy Farmers of America, Dairylea Cooperative, and Land O' Lakes, Inc. about possible joint marketing efforts in the Northeast, according to Hardesty.

Hardesty said that each of the member cooperatives in such an alliance would have "balanced control" and be allowed to maintain their own identity.

Seven families — three from Maryland, two from Pennsylvania, one each from Virginia and West Virginia — were recognized for 50 years of membership in the Maryland and Virginia Milk Producers Cooperative:

- Ronald and Pat Leonard Family, Midland, Va.
- Roy B. and Susan Biesecker, Waynesboro, Pa.
- Edward L. Boyd & Sons, Inc., Rippon, W.Va.
- Chester and Norma Meyers, Greencastle, Pa.
- Edward and Kay O'Hara, Frederick, Md.
- Dennis and Theresa Shafer, Jefferson, Md.

Md. & Va. Milk Cooperative Honors Members, Plans Future

• Charles and Gladys Smith, Myersville, Md.

Reid Smith of Lexington, North Carolina, was named Outstanding Young Cooperator for 2002.

Smith graduated in ag business, economics, and animal science from North Carolina State. He partners with his father in managing a 160 Holstein milking herd.

David and Amy Coltrane, also of North Carolina, and Gordon and Sheila Lee, South Carolina, were runners-up for the young cooperator award.

In a first-time award presentation, three producer couples were recognized for the high quality of milk they shipped during 2001.

James and Sharon Nickle, Nottingham; Allen and Marlene Witmer, Deer Lodge, Tennessee; and Daniel and Florence Sommers, Rustburg, Virginia, were recognized for producing milk with low somatic cell counts, low standard plate counts, and proper freeze point averages.

Don't Let Another Tax Year Pass Without Conserving Your Land

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — April 15 doesn't have to be painful again next year. Instead, it can be a day landowners celebrate both tax savings and the satisfaction of permanently conserving important open spaces.

The nation's 1,200-plus land trusts — nonprofit organizations that are independent of government and work hand-in-hand with landowners who choose to conserve their lands — offer a variety of ways that landowners can permanently protect their open space lands and perhaps shave their tax bill:

• Donate it to a nonprofit land trust.

• Donate a conservation easement, which permanently limits the type and scope of development.

• Sell the land to a land trust in a "bargain sale" for below fair market price.

Under the Internal Revenue Code, for most gifts of appreciated land or conservation easements, a taxpayer can deduct up to 30 percent of his adjusted gross income in the year of the donation. If the value of the gift exceeds that deduction, the taxpayer can carry forward the balance for up to five additional years.

For example, if "Mrs. Landowner" has an adjusted gross income of $50,000 and makes a gift of a conservation easement worth $80,000, her deduction in the first year would be $15,000. The balance can then be carried forward for each of five years until she has deducted the full $80,000 value of her gift.

Because development pressures in most parts of the country dramatically increased property values during the past 20 years, many people are forced to sell lands that have been in the family for generations in order to pay estate taxes.

Consider the "Triple Bar Ranch," a fictional working ranch but a true-to-life financial example. The family patriarch bought the ranch in the 1960s, when land was far less expensive. Today, it is worth $1.25 million.

Mrs. Landowner is a widow, and the ranch comprises nearly her whole estate. She and her husband accumulated just $250,000 in other assets. Therefore, her total estate is worth $1.5 million. In nearly every state, the combined state and federal estate taxes would be about $200,000 — more than the surviving Landowner children could afford to pay, even though they want to see the ranch remain as open space.

The solution may be the voluntary donation of a conservation easement, which legally limits the amount and type of development that can take place on land. An easement can be tailored to a landowner's desires.

The easement may, for example, permit construction of just two more large-lot homes but protect the land from construction of a subdivision.

As a result, Mrs. Landowner may reduce the land's market value to $750,000, down from its current $1.25 million value. Her estate, including $250,000 in other assets, would then be worth $1 million, and no estate taxes would be due.

The nation's private, nonprofit land trusts have been tremendously successful at land protection. Grassroots land trusts had permanently more than 6.2 million acres by the end of 2001. Of that, approximately 2.6 million acres had been protected by conservation easements, according to the Land Trust Alliance (LTA). The amount of acreage protected by conservation easements increased more than fivefold since 1990.

Black To Entertain At Benefit

YORK (York Co.) — The Farm and Natural Lands Trust of York County has announced that Baxter Black, rancher, cowboy poet, author, and National Public Radio commentator, will be the guest entertainer at a benefit dinner May 2 at the Valencia Ballroom in downtown York.

Reservations for the dinner should be made by April 17 by calling the Farm and Natural Lands Trust at (717) 843-4411.

Cost for this evening of family entertainment is $29 per person and includes a social hour and dinner beginning at 6 p.m.

Baxter Black can shoe a horse, string a bob wire fence, and bang out a Bob Wills classic on his flat top guitar. But since 1982 he has been rhyming his way into the national spotlight and stands as the best selling cowboy poet in the world.

He's written 12 books, recorded more than a dozen audio and videotapes, and achieved notoriety as a syndicated columnist and radio commentator.

From the "Tonight Show" and PBS to NPR and the NFR, Baxter's verse has been seen and heard by millions. Yet Black, who still doesn't own a television, fax machine, or cell phone, hasn't changed a thing about his subject matter or his delivery. He continues to focus on the day-to-day ups and downs of everyday people, especially those who live with livestock and work the land.

Proceeds benefit the Farm and Natural Lands Trust of York County. For more information, contact the Farm and Natural Lands Trust at (717) 843-4411 or by e-mail at www.farmtrust.org.

Animal ID Highlight Of Show

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. — The National Institute for Animal Agriculture (NIAA) has announced ID/Info Expo 2002, a conference and trade show devoted to the subject of animal identification and information systems.

The event will take place in Chicago, Ill., July 29-31 and Aug. 1, and will feature the National Food Animal Identification Symposium, the first-ever National Equine Identification Symposium and a trade show featuring manufacturers and service providers in the animal identification and information systems business.

NIAA, formerly known as the Livestock Conservation Institute, has previously facilitated three livestock, or food animal, identification conferences in 1998, 1994, and 1988. This one figures to be the largest.

The preliminary schedule of events has the National Equine Identification Symposium scheduled for July 29-30 and the National Food Animal Identification Symposium scheduled for July 31-Aug. 1. The trade show will span both conferences.

Individuals wanting to make sure they are included on the mailing list are encouraged to go to www.animalagriculture.org/id on the Internet and fill out an online information request card.

Foraging Around, the newsletter of the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council is scheduled April 20 The section includes additional coverage of the Council's recent annual conference in Grantville Also included are features with a focus on making hay for specialty markets

First Chester County Farm Sells Easements Through IPA Plan

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — Chester County has seen its first farm property have an easement sold under the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Installment Purchase Agreement (IPA) plan during a recent settlement.

Closing occurred on the 84.35-acre Dennis and Eleanor Bush farm on March 26. The crop and dairy farm is located in West Fallowfield Township, Chester County. This is only the second farm in the state to have closed since the inception of the state's new Installment Purchase Agreement Program.

"The success of this closing can be attributed to the Bushs' dedication to farming, and to the diligence of the Chester County Agricultural Land Preservation Board," according to Douglas Wolfgang of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Farmland Preservation.

The IPA option enables farmers to gain better tax advantages when selling their easements by deferring all or part of the purchase price — and the resulting capital gains taxes — for up to 30 years.

"Once again in 2002, Pennsylvania expects to strengthen its national lead in Farmland Preservation," said Sam Hayes, Pennsylvania secretary of agriculture. "The Innovative Installment Purchase Agreement is another good idea available to farmers as they consider how to best preserve their farmland for agriculture."

The 84-acre dairy farm is located in West Fallowfield Township in the town of Cochranville, nearly on the border of Lancaster County. Property owners Dennis and Eleanor Bush purchased the property in 1985 to expand their farmland base, which includes an adjacent property also used for dairy farming. Since the couple plans to maintain the property for farming use and has no intention to sell to developers, they committed to preserving the land through the Department of Agriculture's preservation program. Working with the local preservation board, they learned about the new IPA plan.

"We took a close look at the IPA option with our accountant and saw it as a good investment opportunity," said Dennis Bush. "The IPA allows us to preserve the land for farming use, while enjoying tax-free income and a strong rate of return. It's also a positive step for the state, because it keeps more funds available for preserving other farmland."

The first farm property in Pennsylvania to use the IPA plan to achieve similar goals was a 90-acre farm in Mount Joy Township, Lancaster County, which went to settlement in January.

The IPA plan is designed to enable farm owners to increase what they get to keep, and not just what they get, when selling easements. The sellers can opt to defer all or part of the easement's purchase price for up to 30 years and defer capital gains tax for the same period. In the interim, they receive interest twice a year on the outstanding balance; as with a municipal bond, those interest payments are exempt from federal and Pennsylvania state income taxes. Later, the sellers' heirs can choose to sell the IPAs in the municipal bond market to pay estate taxes or capital gains taxes.

Capital gains tax is due when a seller receives payment for appreciated land or other assets. Capital gain is the difference between the sale price and the value of the property when it was first bought or inherited. The IRS taxes capital gains at a maximum rate of 20 percent, and Pennsylvania at a maximum 2.8 percent rate.

Howard County, Maryland, has used 30-year IPAs to buy easements on 9,200 acres from 81 sellers since 1989. Similar programs are under way in Harford and Anne Arundel counties, Maryland; Virginia Beach, Va.; and Burlington County, New Jersey.

Additional information regarding installment purchase can be obtained from each county farmland preservation board or by contacting Doug Wolfgang at the PDA's Bureau of Farmland Preservation at (717) 783-3167 or dowolfgang@state.pa.us. To discuss tax treatment of easement sales, contact Michael W. Evanish, Manager of the Pennsylvania Farm Bureau's MSC Business Services, at (717) 731-3546 or mwevanish@pfb.com.

Crop Protection Available

POTTSVILLE (Schuylkill Co.) — Regulations covering non-insurable crop protection coverage for 2002 crops have been published.

This establishes April 18 as the deadline for application to obtain yield guarantees for the coming year.

Growers can obtain a 50 percent yield guarantee by paying a $100 fee for each crop selected. The maximum fee per county is $300.

The Farm Service Agency will establish a normal yield for each grower based on their past production records. If a catastrophic loss is suffered, the grower will be eligible for benefits on those losses of more than 50 percent.

Any crop which is not covered by crop insurance is eligible for this protection. The eligible crops include peaches, plums, pears, cherries, apricots, string beans, watermelons, cantaloupes, cucumbers, pickles, pumpkins, broccoli, cauliflower, onions, garlic, fresh tomatoes, eggplant, peppers, among many others.

If you wish to participate in the total crop protection program offered by the Farm Service Agency, visit the FSA office on the Gordon Nagle Trail by Thursday, April 18.

New Farmers, New Generation

Pennsylvania Farm Link

TREATING CHILDREN EQUALLY OR EQUITABLY

One of the most important decisions you will make in your lifetime is how your farm will be passed on to the next generation. Further complicating this decision is ways to provide for an equitable distribution of assets among your children.

Time and time again families run into conflicts over these decisions. If you want the farm business to continue, more than likely you will not be able to treat your children equally and ensure the survival of your farm business.

Suppose you're Farmer Brown and have three children, two daughters and one son. Your son went to college, got a degree in accounting, and is a partner in a local accounting firm. His wife and two children are content with their current lifestyle are happy to visit the farm for family occasions. Your older daughter married a farmer from another area of the state and moved in with his family to be part of their operation. She also has two children and a stable future. Your younger daughter, still single, has always expressed an interest in the workings of the farm. She'd rather do farm work than house work and has demonstrated her keen interest and ability by increasing the herd average through her management skills.

Leaving your farm business equally to your three equally loved children, in this scenario is probably a big mistake. Neither your son nor your older daughter has contributed to the labor or management on your farm for quite some time, and each has established another family and career. Neither one is intimately knowledgeable about the workings of your farm like your younger daughter. Why should she work to increase herd averages, and thus profits, if she will eventually be forced to share the fruits of her labor with her two siblings? Or worse yet, having her buy out her two siblings may force her into an untenable situation where she has no hope of being able to be profitable.

Although it may seem obvious who should succeed in this farm business, without frank discussions about why you are leaving the farm to certain children, your heirs may take a dim view of your decision. Instead they may see these decisions more as a barometer of your love, especially when you're talking about the family farm. If Farmer Brown's children learn at the reading of the will that the farm has been left to their younger sister, they likely won't consider her hard work on the farm and her sacrifices for the business. They might even think, "See, Dad really did love her best."

If you want your farm legacy to continue:

- Call family meetings to discuss each child's future role and interest in the business.
- Seek the advice and counsel of outside experts such as attorneys and farm consultants.
- Determine the farm's financial feasibility, if the farm cannot support even one family, look for other avenues to generate income such as off-farm employment, value-added enterprises, or expansion.
- If more than one child has an interest in the business and the farm can support more than one operator, consider partnership agreements or selling shares that cannot be sold outside the family.
- Determine whether children who are not involved in the business should be able to share in the profits.
- Discuss and determine compensation for children who are not involved in the farm.

For more information on farm transfer, contact Pennsylvania Farm Link at (717) 664-7077. An 80-page farm transfer guide is available at a cost of $15, which includes postage and handling.

Farmers Learn Crop Storage Theories At Somerset Crops Day

SANDRA LEPLEY
Somerset Co. Correspondent

BERLIN (Somerset Co.) — Somerset County area farmers learned about various methods and issues concerning crop management at this year's annual Somerset Crops Day, at the Berlin Community Center March 21.

According to Miquel Saviroff, Somerset County extension agent who coordinated the event, the annual crops day serves two purposes by providing farmers with unbiased views of pesticide use and crop management as well as serving as educational credits for farmers to be licensed for chemical use.

"This day is intended to be a time of year when farmers get together to see the presentation of research-based information on subjects that are current and relevant to the production of crops, mostly corn and forages," said Saviroff.

Speakers included specialists from Penn State, private industry and the state department of agriculture. A speaker from the Crop Storage Institute in Green Bay, Wis., held the farmers' attention concerning bunker verses tower silos.

Joseph Shefchik, who has been with the Crop Storage Institute in Green Bay, Wis., for the past two years, presented the reasoning that bunker silos have not been found to be as cost efficient as tower silos for several reasons.

Shefchik travels throughout the Midwest and Northeast speaking at various agricultural-related events. He met local agricultural extension agent Miquel Saviroff last summer and Shefchik agreed to speak at this year's event.

"Tower silos are much more effective than the horizontal methods," said Shefchik. "Even though the tower silos were once considered to be outdated, studies show that tower silos are more profitable long-range."

Shefchik explained that the initial cost of any storage unit is only a very small piece of the total cost picture and the other costs of ownership need to be considered. Generally speaking, the tower silo carries the largest upfront capitol investment, he said.

"The capitol costs of the horizontal methods can be highly variable. It depends on a number of factors including, but not limited to, machinery choices, layout design, bunker wall height, and choosing to buy or rent equipment," he said. "Remember that even in the case of the tower silo, where initial costs are higher and operating costs are low, the cost of the structure will be less than 20 percent of the total cost of ownership."

Shefchik reasoned that feed loss is more likely with a bunker silo. He says based on research, a bunker silo loses about 17 percent of its dry matter during the storage period, which can amount to costly loses during the year. However, a tower silo will lose between six to nine percent of its dry matter because of mostly anaerobic respiration of the fermenting bacteria.

Shefchik also pointed out that unloading costs are a major factor that most people do not realize. Operating a tractor to unload a bunker silo can be quite costly when considering fuel; however, a silo unloader can run for about 50 cents an hour, said Shefchik.

"In addition, filling costs is also a factor in the total ownership costs of any storage unit. It must be remembered that operating a tractor is very expensive and that the filling machines required for tower silos and silage bags wear out quickly," said Shefchik.

Another speaker, Don Rill, regional agronomy extension agent based in Altoona, spoke on the safety and maintenance of spraying equipment during the morning session.

Rill explained afterward that the local farmers gather information during crops day and then, when the time comes to incorporate any practices into their operation, they usually contact an extension agent for more information.

"We still have a one-on-one tradition of teaching on family farms," said Rill. "The guys on the ground want personal contact. The best educational tool is a farm visit."

William Curran, Department of Agronomy at Penn State, spoke to the farmers about weed management.

"Our job is to provide the latest and greatest of technology and how to stay competitive, particularly in today's economic picture with farmers going through struggles," said Curran after his presentation.

Curran pointed out that crops day gives farmers an unbiased opinion of the latest products on the market in terms of pesticides and also what the latest issues are facing Somerset County agriculture.

In addition to becoming updated on necessary information, the farmers have an opportunity to receive pesticide update credits for their license to use pesticides.

Other speakers included Richard Earnst, deputy secretary for marketing and programs at the state Department of Agriculture; Michael Harteis, regional farm management extension agent; and Miquel Saviroff, Somerset County extension agent; Thomas Wolf, state department of agriculture for Region V.

Fruit, Vegetable Committee To Meet April 16-17

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The USDA recently announced that the newly created Fruit and Vegetable Industry Advisory Committee will meet April 16-17.

USDA Secretary Ann Veneman established the committee to provide suggestions and ideas on how USDA can tailor its programs to meet the fruit and vegetable industry's needs.

The committee will meet on April 16 from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. and April 17 from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. at the USDA's South Building, 1400 Independence Avenue, SW, Room 3501, Washington, D.C.

Individuals who are interested in fruit and vegetable programs at USDA are invited to attend. Because seating space will be limited, reservations must be made on or before April 9. For reserved seating and special accommodations, contact the committee's executive secretary, Robert C. Keeney, fax (202) 720-0016, or e-mail Robert.Keeney@usda.gov.

Foraging Around, the newsletter of the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council is scheduled April 20. The section includes additional coverage of the Council's recent annual conference in Grantville. Also included are features with a focus on making hay for specialty markets.

April 15 Deadline To Vote On Apple Marketing Program

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Agriculture Secretary Sam Hayes encouraged Pennsylvania apple producers to cast their ballots in this year's Apple Referendum, which will decide whether or not to continue Pennsylvania's Apple Marketing Program.

Apple producers growing more than 500 trees are eligible to vote in the referendum, which began Tuesday. Producers have until April 15 to submit their ballots to the state Department of Agriculture.

"I encourage all apple producers to vote in this important referendum," Hayes said. "It is their opportunity to express their opinion regarding the future of the Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program and the future of the state's apple industry."

The Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program was established under the Agriculture Commodities Marketing Act in 1968. The program represents the interests of Pennsylvania apple growers and promotes the sale of Pennsylvania apples.

The marketing program is expected to boost sales of apples in Pennsylvania by, among other things, stimulating supermarket business through fall and winter promotions. The Pennsylvania Apple Marketing Program was last reviewed in 1997.

The referendum order and official ballot were mailed out to Pennsylvania apple producers March 29. Completed ballots may be hand delivered or mailed to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Bureau of Market Development, Room 311, 2301 North Cameron St., Harrisburg, PA 17110. All hand-delivered ballots must be received by 4 p.m. April 15, and all mailed ballots must be postmarked by April 15 and received by the department no later than April 20.

Pennsylvania ranks fifth nationally in apple production. In 2000, Pennsylvania apple growers produced 475 million pounds, valued at $54 million.

NRCS Seeks Input On Vendors

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Natural Resources Conservation Service (NRCS) will conduct a public meeting Monday, April 15 for farmers and producers regarding the use of third-party vendors. The meeting will take place at the Farm and Home Center, Lancaster, at 7:30 p.m.

The purpose of the third-party vendor meeting is to provide farmers and other USDA program participants with an opportunity to comment on obtaining technical assistance from sources outside USDA. Technical assistance includes conservation planning and the design, layout, installation, and checkout of approved conservation practices.

NRCS and conservation districts have traditionally provided technical assistance for conservation planning and practice installation, and will continue to do so. In addition to NRCS and conservation district assistance, technical assistance will also be available from individuals outside of USDA — third-party vendors.

Third-party vendors are individuals certified to provide technical assistance on behalf of USDA. The use of third-party vendors for technical assistance was authorized in the 1996 Farm Bill. The 2002 Farm Bill includes additional language on the use of third-party vendors, including payments for such assistance.

State Conservationist Robin Heard said "NRCS is committed to ensuring that technical assistance provided by NRCS, conservation districts, and third-party vendors will be quality assistance. NRCS is also committed to establishing a third-party vendor program that is farmer-friendly. Private sector technical assistance will be offered in ways that will be convenient to farmers and designed to meet their needs."

Input is needed on the specific features farmers and ranchers would like to see in the third-party vendor program. NRCS will use the opinions expressed in these meetings to broaden the availability and accessibility of technical assistance through traditional sources and third-party vendors.

For more information about the public meeting that will take place April 15, contact Gary Smith, assistant state conservationist for NRCS, at (717) 237-2204.

WATER LEGISLATION AND AGRICULTURE

Many of us may have viewed water as something with an unlimited supply, something we all take for granted. But, in the past six years, we have faced four years with a drought situation in Pennsylvania.

Currently, 24 counties in southeastern Pennsylvania are in a drought emergency. We are starting to look at water as something that is a limited resource — something we need to plan and protect for the future.

During the past few years, legislation on the issue has focused on water quality rather than quantity. This is now changing because of the circumstances we are facing. Our state water plan has not been revised since 1975. Many organizations and businesses are voicing their concerns and recommendations on this issue.

It is important that agriculture weighs in on this planning, since estimates indicate agriculture makes up 20 percent of total consumptive water use in the Susquehanna River Basin.

A critical area to keep at the forefront on future planning is the volume of groundwater recharge our farmland provides through rainwater infiltration. Simply put, an average-size dairy farm with 60 cows on 85 acres provides more than 30 million gallons of net contribution to groundwater. This takes into account all water consumed on the farm. Another interesting statistic is that one acre of farmland collects enough rainwater (400,000 gallons per year) to supply seven households per year.

Looking at current regulations in place regarding water use, the following items impact agriculture to some degree. In 1995, the Susquehanna River Basin Commission (SRBC) adopted a regulation that requires all surface and groundwater withdrawals of more than 10,000 gallons per day be registered. Estimates indicate only 25 percent of the farms that exceed this level of withdraw have registered their water use.

You might ask yourself, why would I want to register my water use? The answer is simple — you are documenting your daily needs, which puts you in a stronger legal position should conflict occur. When one of your neighbors wants to withdraw a new large daily amount of water, he or she must register with the SRBC before doing so. The SRBC reviews the potential impacts of the new water withdraw to all current water withdrawals registered within the area.

Another potential impact on larger farms is a requirement to address water consumption. This regulation temporarily excludes agricultural uses, but it is something to keep in mind for the future as these regulations change. The regulation states that operations which consumptively use more than 20,000 gallons per day are required to compensate for their use during critical low flows by utilizing one of three options: 1. Suspending use during low flows. 2. Releasing stored water upstream or utilizing water stored on-site during low flows. 3. Paying the SRBC a consumptive use fee $.14 per 1,000 gallons) for water used consumptively. This fee would be used to develop and store water during critical low flows. These options obviously would create an economic burden to farms, thus the reason to be temporarily suspended. Currently the Agriculture Water Use Advisory Committee is carefully exploring options for agriculture operations.

There are several pieces of legislation being considered in Pennsylvania, with one of the more important bills being House Bill 2230. This bill is in the House Committee on Environmental Resources and Energy and would require the Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) to revise the state's water plan over the next three years and require the plan to be updated every five years. This bill would also establish a 25-person Statewide Water Resources Advisory Committee to help develop state water policies, require users of water exceeding 10,000 gallons per day to register and report their annual water use, and begin to determine areas in Pennsylvania where water demand exceeds supply so a "water budget" can be established.

Registration of water use for agriculture should be a reasonable process for a farmer to go through with limited burdens on registration fees, monitoring, and reporting requirements. Water use planning needs to take into consideration the recharge aspect that farmland provides and offer water credits based on criteria set. Another recommendation would be to have appropriate representation from agriculture on water planning boards. And lastly, it is important to address the costs surrounding the plugging of abandoned water wells with grant monies.

Now is the time to weigh in on proposed water regulations. There is an upcoming Rally Day for Agriculture sponsored by PennAg Industries, Pennsylvania Farm Bureau, and Pennsylvania State Grange on Monday, April 8 from 3 p.m. to 5:30 p.m. at the State Capitol Rotunda. For more information on water legislation or the Rally Day for Agriculture, contact Brent Landis at the Chamber at (717) 397-3531, ext. 134 or blandis@lcci.com.

Equine Program Offered

SKIPPACK (Montgomery Co.) — The Penn State Extension of Montgomery County offers an educational program for all horse enthusiasts on Tuesday, April 23, entitled "What Your Horse is Trying to Tell You — Exploring Equine Vices."

Featured speaker Dr. Ann Swinker, equine extension specialist at Penn State, will talk about equine vices and related behavior problems both in-hand and under saddle.

Since horses cannot "talk" to us, they often communicate their needs of frustrations through what humans would call "bad behavior." Often vices are a result of conditions imposed on our horses in captivity or by human error. Some vices may be prevented and some are treatable. Safety issues and possible solutions to some behavior problems will be discussed.

This program is open to all horse owners, riders and enthusiasts. According to Extension Agent Nancy Kadwill, there is no cost for the class but advance registration is requested to reserve a spot. Please call the extension office at (610) 489-4315, and leave your name, address and phone number if you wish to attend.

Dr. Swinker has served as the equine specialist at the University of Colorado for many years and recently returned to Penn State.

The meeting will be conducted from 7:30-9 p.m. at the Montgomery County 4-H Center located on Route 113, one mile south of Route 73 near Skippack.

March 1 Cattle Feedlot Numbers 2 Percent Lower

WASHINGTON, D.C — Cattle on feed for slaughter market in the U.S. for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 11.52 million head on March 1, 2002, according to the National Agricultural Statistics Serivce (NASS).

The inventory was down 2 percent from the 11.70 million head on March 1, 2001 but 2 percent above March 1, 2000.

Placements in feedlots during February totaled 1.81 million, 14 percent above 2001 but 4 percent below 2000. Net placements were 1.74 million. During February, placements of cattle and calves weighing less than 600 pounds were 260,000, 600-699 pounds were 410,000, 700-799 pounds were 662,000, and 800 pounds and greater were 473,000.

Other disappearance totaled 63,000 during February, 22 percent below 2001 and 19 percent below 2000.

Cattle on feed March 1, 2002, in the historic seven states for feedlots with capacity of 1,000 or more head totaled 9.91 million, down 1 percent from the previous year but 2 percent above March 1, 2000.

Placements in feedlots during February totaled 1.54 million, 16 percent above 2001 but 4 percent below 2000.

Youth Conservation School

LANCASTER (Lancaster Co.) — The Lancaster County Conservation District, along with local sportsmen's clubs, offers a weeklong summer adventure for teen-agers ages 14-16 interested in outdoor activities.

The Lancaster County Youth Conservation School (YCS) is a resident school program at the Northern County Fish and Game Protection Association in West Cocalico Township, July 21-27.

Topics include forestry, canoeing, wildlife management, archery, survival, and firearm safety. Teens will be able to meet professionals to discuss career options.

DCNR Secretary Warns Of Spring Wildfire Danger

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Drawing attention to persisting drought conditions that heighten the risk of wildfires in Pennsylvania, Department of Conservation and Natural Resource (DCNR) Secretary John C. Oliver is calling for increased vigilance to safeguard the commonwealth's wealth of woodlands.

Secretary Oliver's call coincided with Gov. Mark Schweiker's proclamation designating March 17-23 Wildfire Prevention Week.

"Though forests are a renewable resource, they quickly can be endangered by acts of carelessness," Oliver said. "People cause 98 percent of wildfires. A mere spark by a careless person can touch off a devastating forest blaze during dry periods when conditions are especially ripe for wildfires to spread."

Oliver noted that wildfires during the past two summers have scorched hundreds of thousands of acres of woodlands in at least six western states. A record number of Pennsylvanians answered the call for volunteers to help fight those blazes.

Oliver cautioned that the prolonged drought and often windy conditions may increase the chance of forest and brush fires spreading, but their cause still almost always is traced to human carelessness.

About 10,000 acres of state forest are burned by wildfires each year, and about 85 percent of all fires in Pennsylvania woodlands occur during the months of March, April, and May. Almost all of these fires threaten people and their homes, as well as trees and wildlife.

Alfred State Award Grants

ALFRED, N.Y. — The Alfred State Alumni Association has again awarded grants in its Learning Enhancement Program. This program offers financial support to faculty and staff for the design and implementation of learning enhancement projects. Applicants may request up to $1,000 for supplies and equipment related to projects, which improve and enhance student learning.

LINK Offers Deer Control Tool

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — Landowners and hunters are teaming up through a Pennsylvania Game Commission program to limit game animals and furbearers that cause crop or property damages.

Developed in 1999, the LINK Program attempts to direct hunters to the owners of properties who need assistance, mainly with deer damage.

Known as a "dating service" for landowners and hunters, LINK offers an option for landowners looking for wildlife control solutions and hunters looking for land.

The cost-free program both recognizes the need for wildlife control but also addresses the fact that landowners may be uneasy with inviting the general public onto their property.

A landowner enrolls by filling out a Landowner Information and Property Profile Form and submitting it to the game commission. The form is posted on the agency's homepage (www.pgc.state.pa.us) in the Hunter Information section.

Hunters can browse the landowner information and property profile online and write to landowners if they are interested in hunting on that property.

The hunter then applies to enrolled landowners by sending them a Hunter/Trapper Information and Profile Form, which contains background information about the inquiring hunter/trapper. This application process allows the landowner to decide whether to invite the applicant to the property.

Landowner enrollment is ongoing.

According to website information, "it's far better to allow license-buying hunters and trappers to harvest and make wise use of game and furbearers in season than to remove them as nuisance wildlife, which often is not consumed or utilized."

The LINK Program does not require participating landowners to commit to a long-term arrangement.

Highlights Of Pa. Bull Performance Test

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — Sixty-eight beef bulls went on the auction block on March 29, the concluding highlight of the 2002 Bull Performance Test conducted by the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture at its Livestock Evaluation Center located at University Park.

This year's beef bull test and sale included Angus, Charolais, Limousin, Polled Hereford, and Simmental.

"The bull test and sale exemplifies the best of Pennsylvania's beef industry," Sam Hayes, agricultural secretary, said. "Some of the best-tested genetics were sold which afforded the opportunity for interested breeders to buy quality bulls."

Programs like the bull performance test are used to verify the genetic potential animals on test by evaluating bulls in a controlled environment. By proving the genetic potential of tested bulls, animals offered for sale can assist buyers in producing higher quality replacement and feeder animals.

The high-selling bull was an Angus sold by Marlin and Steve Paul to Tom Mullinix for the USDA in Union Bridge, Md. Sale price was $3,200. This was the top-indexing bull in the overall breeds.

The second high bull was a Red Angus sold by Nancy Myers of Dallastown to Tom Boop and Charles Gaffney of Roscoe, N.Y. Sale price was $3,150.

The high-selling Hereford was sold for $2,000.

The high-selling Angus was sold for $3,200.

The high-selling Simmental was sold for $3,100.

The high-selling Charolais was sold for $2,000.

The high-selling Limousin was sold for $1,500.

The average for Limousin sold (one) was $1,500.

Sixty-seven bulls were sold at a total of $124,475, or an average of $1,858 per bull.

"It is not possible," Hayes said, "to conduct a performance test without the involvement of many persons including the cattle breeders of Pennsylvania; the PDA staff at the Livestock Evaluation Center and the Bureau of Animal Health and Diagnostic Services; the livestock technical committee, auctioneer and ringmen; and the staff professionals at The Pennsylvania State University. Also, I want to recognize the members of the Pennsylvania Cattlemen's Association, the Pennsylvania Livestock Association, and the Pennsylvania Beef Council. And I appreciate the buyers who attended the sale. This was a team effort."

On a related note, Hayes said that the Pa. Department of Agriculture will enter the construction phase of its new Livestock Evaluation Center in the very near future. "It is my hope," he said, "to have a new Livestock Evaluation Center that will serve as a model for the nation. It is important for livestock producers and consumers. This was one of my goals when I became secretary of agriculture.

"In addition to performance testing, the new Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture facility will also be available for instruction, research, and it will be a professional conference center for livestock producers," Hayes concluded.

March 1 Hog, Pig Inventory Two Percent Above Year Ago

WASHINGTON, D.C.— U.S. inventory of all hogs and pigs on March 1, 2002, was 58.7 million head, according to the National Agricultual Statistics Service (NASS). This was 2 percent above March 2001 but 1 percent below December 1, 2001.

• Breeding inventory, at 6.24 million head, was up slightly from both March 1, 2001, and last quarter.

• Market hog inventory, at 52.5 million head, was 2 percent above last year but 1 percent below last quarter.

The December 2001-February 2002 U.S. pig crop, at 24.7 million head, was 3 percent more than 2001, and 1 percent more than 2000. Sows farrowing during this period totaled 2.83 million head, 3 percent above last year. The sows farrowed during this quarter represented 46 percent of the breeding herd. The average pigs per litter was 8.73 pigs saved per litter for the December 2001-February 2002 period, compared to 8.72 pigs last year. Pigs saved per litter by size of operation ranged from 7.30 for operations with 1-99 hogs to 8.80 for operations with more than 5,000 hogs and pigs.

U.S. hog producers intend to have 2.90 million sows farrow during the March-May 2002 quarter, 1 percent above the actual farrowings during the same period in 2001, and slightly above 2000. Intended farrowings for June-August 2002, at 2.90 million sows, are 1 percent above the same period in 2001, and up slightly from 2000.

The total number of hogs under contract, owned by operations with more than 5,000 head, but raised by contractees, accounted for 31 percent of the total U.S. hog inventory, down from 32 percent last year.

Revisions: All inventory and pig crop estimates for March 2001 through December 2001 were reviewed using final pig crop, official slaughter, death loss, import, and export data in U.S. level balance sheets. Based on the findings of this review, adjustments of one percent were made to the September 1, 2001 inventory, two percent to the June-August 2001 pig crop, and one half percent to the December 1, 2001 inventory.

More Than $35 Million Available For Growing Greener Projects

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — The Growing Greener statute (Act 68 of 1999) allows counties to access Landfill Post Closure Trust Funds if they agree to use the funds for purposes outlined in the act. County commissioners need only submit a trust amendment or trust termination agreement for DEP's signature.

As of Dec. 30, 2001, $26.8 million, or 43 percent of these trust fund monies, have been earmarked for these purposes. There remains $35,474,773 in these accounts available to counties for Growing Greener purposes.

Examples of Growing Greener projects are recreational trails, open space preservation, conservation projects, acquisition and protection of farmland, acid mine drainage abatement, safe drinking water, storm water and wastewater treatment projects, recycling market development, fish and wildlife habitats, and funding conservation districts. The funds remaining in landfill trust funds: Adams County, $26,447; Allegheny County, $4,791,362; Armstrong County, $6,978; Beaver County, $249,388; Bedford County, $10,740; Berks County, $5,158,554; Butler County, $1,057,283; Cambria County, $524,008; Centre County, $58,359; Chester County, $288,197; Clarion County, $703,163; Clearfield County, $50,217; Cumberland County, $624,410; Elk County, $1,743,529; Erie County, $2,602,586; Fayette County, $281,949; Franklin County, $1,839,361; Indiana County, $287,183; Jefferson County, $6,199; Lackawanna County, $8,104,790; Lancaster County, $2,235,264; McKean County, $285,330; Mercer County, $41,081; Mifflin County, $171,201; Northumberland County, $49,548; Perry County, $2,891; Somerset County, $2,297,532; Tioga County, $34,057; Warren County, $27,277; and Washington County, $1,915,889.

NFU Urges Senate To Enact Renewable Fuels Standard

WASHINGTON, D.C. — National Farmers Union (NFU) has joined a broad coalition of agriculture groups, renewable fuel producers and organizations concerned with the country's air quality in a recent letter to the U.S. Senate urging enactment of a renewable fuels standard (RFS).

According to NFU President Leland Swenson, creating a RFS would triple ethanol production over the next decade by requiring that a small percentage of renewable fuels, such as ethanol and biodiesel, be blended into motor fuels. Pending legislation would increase renewable fuels use from two billion gallons in 2003 to five billion gallons in 2012.

"The Renewable Fuels Standard provides great opportunities for farmers and consumers by aiding the pursuit of sound farm, environmental, security and economic polices," Swenson said. "It will help increase market prices for commodities, enhance the security of our fuel supply, and ensure the availability of gas and diesel additives that help the environment.

"Processing plants that produce biofuels are popping up across the nation," Swenson added. "Many of these facilities are farmer-owned cooperatives. Farmers and processors are gearing up to meet the new environmental and energy security challenges."

Joining NFU on the letter were the Renewable Fuels Association. Environmental and Energy Study Institute, American Bioenergy Association, National Corn Growers Association, American Corn Growers Association, American Farm Bureau Federation, Clean Fuels Development Coalition, American Coalition for Ethanol, National Grain Sorghum Producers, New Uses Council, Global Biorefiner and the American Soybean Association.

Nominations Open For No-Till Innovator Awards

GREENSBORO, N.C. — Syngenta Crop Protection and No-Till Farmer magazine are seeking nominations for the seventh annual No-Till Innovator Awards. Nominations are encouraged for any individuals or groups in the U.S. and Canada who demonstrate a deep commitment to soil conservation, practice no-till or dedicate themselves to the promotion of no-till farming.

The No-Till Innovator Awards recognize outstanding growers, researchers, organizations and others who have dedicated themselves to finding ways to use no-till farming techniques more effectively, more economically and with lower environmental impact.

Individuals or organizations can be nominated in each of the following categories. Self-nominations are accepted. Anyone who has made a significant contribution to the advancement of no-till farming is eligible to win, regardless of the crop grown, or brand of equipment or crop protection products used.

• Ag Supplier: A fertilizer, agrichemical, seed or equipment dealership that has actively adopted no-till practices and promotes no-till farming.

• Consulting: A certified crop consultant, agronomist or professional farm manager who actively promotes the environmental and economic benefits of no-till farming.

• Crop Production: A grower who has increased the economic feasibility of no-till on his or her own farm. Criteria include innovation, creativity, willingness to share findings with others and creating a positive image for no-till farming.

• Equipment Systems Design: An individual who has developed an innovative modification to existing equipment, created new no-till equipment or developed a new method to improve no-till farming. Equipment may consist of any machinery or attachments for planting, fertilizing, applying crop protection products or harvesting.

• Organization: A group that has actively promoted no-till farming through activities, clubs or educational seminars.

• Research and Education: A university researcher, educator or extension specialist who tests and evaluates no-till concepts, products or equipment, and who promotes the benefits of no-till farming.

Northeast Order Uniform Price For February Announced

BOSTON, Mass. — Erik F. Rasmussen, market administrator for the Northeast Marketing Area, has announced that the statistical uniform price paid by milk dealers (handlers) regulated under the Northeast Order for February 2002 is $13.48 per hundredweight ($1.16 per gallon) for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County, Mass. (Boston). The February statistical uniform price is $13.38 for delivery to plants in New York, N.Y., and $13.28 for delivery to plants in Philadelphia. The statistical uniform price is the benchmark minimum producer blend price paid to dairy farmers, prior to allowable deductions, for milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat, 2.99 percent protein, and 5.69 percent other solids. The price received by an individual dairy farmer will vary as the component composition of a farm's milk differs from the established benchmarks and by the location of the plant(s) to which the farm's milk is delivered.

Rasmussen also stated that the producer price differential (PPD) for February is $1.85 per hundredweight for milk delivered to plants located in Suffolk County. The PPD represents each producer's share of the value generated by the marketwide pool on a hundredweight basis. The PPD, which is added to the payment producers receive for their milk's components, is adjusted for the location of the receiving plant. The statistical uniform price and PPD decrease by scheduled amounts the more distant the plant receiving producer milk is from Suffolk County.

The Class prices for milk pooled in February are as follows: Class I, $15.20 (Suffolk County); Class II, $12.28; Class III, $11.63; and Class IV, $11.54. Comparable prices for February 2001 were: Class I $15.19, Class II $13.43, Class III $10.27, and Class IV price $12.70. The component values for February are protein, $2.0884 per pound; butterfat, $1.3817 per pound; other solids, $0.0965 per pound; and nonfat solids, $0.7721 per pound.

Milk receipts from producers totaled 2.008 billion pounds. Class I utilization, milk processed as beverage milk, was 40.8 percent of producer milk receipts. The average Class I utilization was 43.3 percent in February 2001.

The manufacture of Class II products such as cream, ice cream, yogurt, and cottage cheese utilized 16.4 percent of producer milk. Milk used to manufacture Class III products such as cheese (American and Italian) and evaporated and condensed products utilized 29.8 percent of total milk receipts. Class IV usage (butter, nonfat and whole milk powder) equaled 13.0 percent of the total.

HAKARI ALASKA BROMEGRASS

Great Drought Tolerance! Fast Establishment

Hakari is a new type of Brome with very fast establishment, excellent drought tolerance, and very high protein and digestibility. Hakari is easy to mow and dry and not as sod forming as smooth brome. Very late maturing. Hakari's high palatability makes it good for grazing together with Baralfa 42-IQ in drought prone fields.

IMPORTANT: FOR LONG-TERM STAND PERSISTANCE LEAVE A 3 INCH OR MORE STUBBLE.

HAKARI BROME MAKES A GREAT COMPANION FOR ALFALFA

Paso Finos Quick-Step Into The Spotlight

MICHELLE RANCK
Lancaster Farming Staff

DALLASTOWN (York Co.) — If you can translate "Los Caballos de Paso Fino," perhaps you already know what the Latin American horse breed is known for.

"The horse with the fine step," a gaited breed, came to the New World on Christopher Columbus's second voyage in 1494.

Bred in Latin America, Paso Finos were virtually unknown in the U.S. until the late 1940s. Their ancestry is a mixture of the Andalusian, Barb, and the now-extinct Spanish Jennet lines.

Today, the two main lines of the breed are Columbian and Puerto Rican.

The Horse Business

Arthur Glatfelter, owner of FieldStone Meadow Farm, Dallastown, and his late wife got into the Paso Fino horse business in 1976, when their daughter convinced them to buy three Tennessee Walker horses.

After reading about the Paso Fino breed, Glatfelter purchased two during a business trip to Florida.

Arthur Glatfelter, FieldStone Meadows Farm, Dallastown, sits astride Juan Miguel.

These two animals impressed the Glatfelters, who continued to expand their horse numbers until they owned 90 horses at one time.

At this time they were one of the biggest breeders in the country and key in introducing the breed to the northern U.S. Fifteen horses are now at the farm.

Originally from nearby Craley, the family moved to the current farm in 1986 and constructed an indoor and outdoor arena on the 126-acre operation.

"We sold horses to people who were tired of going up and down," he said, referring to the bouncier gait of other breeds. Additionally a blind rider, elderly riders, and a wheelchair-bound rider have come to the farm to purchase a horse.

"People with back problems go to Paso Finos because they are so smooth," said Sheri Becker, farm manager who grew up in nearby New Oxford.

A good trail riding horse will fetch $6,500 or below while a good show horse will cost $6,500 to $600,000 or above.

A Natural Gait

Although the horses can easily walk, canter, and gallop, they prefer traveling in their own natural lateral gait. The foals are born with the distinctive four-count cadenced rhythm.

"Two days after they are born, when you put them out in the pasture with their mothers, you just can't believe it," said Glatfelter.

"They are a pleasure to have and a pleasure to be on," he said. The horses' movement is evenly spaced. Each foot contacts the ground independently, creating the smooth travel appreciated by the rider.

During breed shows, to demonstrate the fluid gait, an exhibitor will ride around the ring at various speeds with a wine glass three-quarters full, said Becker.

One gait, a walk, according to Becker, has three primary speeds. "All gaits are different speeds of a walk," she said.

The walk can be sped up to a "Largo," the fastest speed, which allows the horse longer stride. Top Largo horses can travel at a walk at speeds of 18-20 miles an hour.

The average trail gait, and comparable to the trot in speed, is the "Corto" gait. The "Fino" gait is difficult and only attained by a select few animals. Each hoof hits the ground in rapid succession, but the forward movement is the speed of a slow walk.

According to Becker, it may take a good trainer to see the potential for fino in some horses.

"The gait is so fast that just watching in the sand, you'd miss it," said Glatfelter.

During a show the horses travel across a sounding board called the "pista" to highlight the speed of the four-beat gait. The sounding board also shows more the even four- beat sound along with the speed of the rapid footfall.

Show Time

Although the showing days are now at a minimum, the Glatfelters exhibited in Kansas, Florida, Maine, "and everywhere in between," he said. The horses may be shown in performance, pleasure, or fino classes.

Shows may include such classes as the trail class, which features obstacles such as water and plastic. Competitions also include the pleasure class, where the horse may perform with a loose gait, the performance class, where the gait is tighter, and the fino, where the horse exhibits the fastest foot motion and slowest forward movement.

Juan Miguel, FieldStone Meadows' star performer, is now standing at stud at the farm. He was a Bella Forma champion at the last Keystone International Livestock Exposition (KILE) and the national champion at age three.

In the Bella Forma competition, the horse is shown with only two lead lines to exhibit the animal's conformation and gait.

Breed Traits

The breed is marked by its gentle disposition. "Everybody's an individual," said Glatfelter. "However as a breed they're known as being very nice and personable."

The animals "can be any color in the book — paints are becoming popular," said Becker.

Paso Finos vary in size from 13.2 to 15.2 hands, however most Paso Finos stand slightly over 14 hands. A long mane and thick forelock are also distinguishing characteristics.

In addition to being personable, easy maintenance is another breed trait. "These horses are not as domesticated as other breeds," said Becker.

Paso Finos, for example, "seem to try to sneak foaling by you," she said. The animals, "easy keepers," she said, need little feed and can stay fit off of grass hay and pasture.

In the springtime Becker puts a muzzle on the horses to curtail their foraging on the new, abundant greenery in the pastures. She does, however, attempt to put the horses in the pasture if possible, as they are herd animals and "need to interact."

Hacienda LaFlemente

A farm nearby to FieldStone Meadows gained a Latin American flair when the horses moved onto the operation. The "Hacienda LaFlamente," Felton, is now home to Paso Finos after the owners, Earl and Dawn Burg, purchased a Paso Fino from FieldStone Meadows Farm.

The couple bought their first Paso Fino five years ago as trail riding horses and are now breeding and showing the animals.

Trainer Cliff Lawrence, originally from a farm in Illinois, traveled the southern states extensively, where he was introduced to the breed while he trained Tennessee Walking horses in Pikeville, Ky.

"At first I didin't think the horse would carry me that far — I thought of them as ponies," he said. "I found out that they're not, and that they'll take you up and down mountains."

According to Cliff the animal combines the smooth ride of a gaited horse yet also possesses great agility uncommon in the larger gaited breeds. In Puerto Rico, for example, the horse is used to herd cattle.

Trainer Cliff Lawrence, Hacienda La Flamente, teaches the horses to respond to leg pressure and body language.

Lawrence uses a variety of bits to help each horse look its best. "It's different for each horse," he said.

Lawrence places a premium on making sure the horses have a soft mouth and are responsive to leg pressure, so he often trains his animals without reins.

"The horse should respond to your movement," he said. "If you put constant pressure on the reins, a horse's mouth will go numb. I teach these horses a lot of body language so that they respond to leg pressure so I don't have to be 'in their mouth' as much."

The trainer uses a variety of bits to help each horse looks its best. "It's different for each horse," he said.

While he rides he demonstrates the horse's focus on body language and pressure by taking the reins in his teeth and guiding his horse around the ring.

Horses on the Hacienda La Flamente are traveling to show rings from Kentucky to Ohio. A Juan Miguel colt has taken third place in the national pleasure class.

In the Fino class, 80 to 90 percent of the judging is based on gait. "Finos are the most prestigious and the most rare," said Lawrence. "To me, the performance horse is your ultimate horse. They have to be fino-quick, elegant, and have strong hocks to drive with the rear end." A Fino horse takes tight, three-inch steps, said Lawrence.

In addition to show ring qualities, however, "I like a horse you can take on the trail and put in the show ring," said Lawrence.

Grief Teleconference Scheduled

SPRINGFIELD (Delaware Co.) — Delaware County Cooperative Extension will host the ninth annual Hospice Foundation of America National Bereavement Teleconference on Wednesday, April 24 at 1:15 p.m.-4 p.m. in their facility in Smedley Park, Springfield.

"Living With Grief: Loss in Later Life," moderated by Cokie Roberts of ABC News, will examine the needs and barriers faced by our aging population and explore ways that professionals can more effectively assist those coping with the range of losses found in later life.

The teleconference is intended for both professionals and lay people. Continuing Education credits are available for a wide range of professionals including nurses, social workers, counselors, funeral directors, psychologists, etc.

A $25 processing fee will be required for those requesting CEUs. To learn more about this national program, visit the Hospice Foundation of America's Website at: www.hospicefoundation.org. For more local information about the teleconference and to register, contact Penn State Cooperative Extension — Delaware County at (610) 690-2655. There is no cost for the conference but registration is requested. A companion textbook will be available for $8 at the program.

Workshop Rescheduled

WEST CHESTER (Chester Co.) — To find out about what radon is, its health effects, how you can test for it, and what you can do about it, plan to attend "Radon in the Home: Myths and Realities," an educational program presented by Penn State Cooperative Extension.

The program has been rescheduled from Monday, April 8, to Monday, April 15, from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the Penn State Cooperative Extension office at the County Government Services Center, Suite 370, 601 Westtown Road, West Chester.

To register, call (610) 696-3500 by April 8.

Update On Heart Disease

SPRINGFIELD (Delaware Co.) — Are you taking medication for high blood pressure, high cholesterol or other heart related symptoms or preparing meals for family members who are?

Penn State Cooperative Extension is offering a class, "Update on Heart Disease," at their Springfield office in Smedley Park that will discuss a variety of risk factors that can be changed with an emphasis on positive dietary input including the DASH diet to control hypertension, the diabetic connection and the latest recommendations on lowering cholesterol. Conducted on April 9 from 7-9 p.m. and repeated on April 10 from 1-3 p.m., Fran Alloway, family living agent and registered dietitian will include the latest research findings and methods to make healthy meal selection easy.

The workshop will be conducted at Delaware County Cooperative Extension, 20 Paper Mill Road, Smedley Park, Springfield. For directions: (610) 690-2655.

Berks Dairy Candidates Sought

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Attention all Berks County girls interested in promoting the dairy industry. The Berks County Dairy Promotion Committee is now seeking candidates for the 2002-2003 Dairy Princess.

The new princess will be crowned by the out going 2001-2002 Berks County Dairy Princess Kristen Gross of Hamburg. The pageant will be conducted May 18 at the Berks County Agricultural Center.

As the Berks County Dairy Princess, the young lady will get the opportunity to promote the dairy industry not only in Berks County, but she will also compete in a state pageant for the title of Pennsylvania State Dairy Princess.

Some activities a dairy princess takes part in is going into elementary schools, attending fairs, and speaking at banquets and meetings, as well as many other public appearances.

The qualifications for any interested young, single girl between the ages of 16 to 24 include being the daughter of a dairy farmer, dairy farm manager, herdsman, or someone employed in the dairy industry. Or she must be employed in one of the above categories or own two or more dairy cattle in a 4-H or FFA project. The deadline for all interested candidates is April 26.

The committee is also looking for candidates for little miss dairy princesses. These contestants must be between the ages of four and six. The deadline for all little miss contestants is May 3.

This year the Berks County Promotion Team had five active dairy ambassadors. We are again looking for any boys or girls ages 13 and up to become a dairy ambassador.

For all interested dairy princess candidates, little miss candidates and ambassadors, please contact Frances Davis, 1240 Fairview Drive, Leesport, PA 19533, phone (610) 926-3548.

Berks Dairy Princess Scrapbook In Process

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — Attention past Berks County dairy princesses. The Berks County Dairy Princess Committee is looking for pictures of past Berks County dairy princesses to put together a scrapbook of memories.

The committee would like a photograph from the night you were crowned if that is possible, but if that is not available, if you could supply a photo from your year as dairy princess. The photo will not be returned. All questions and photographs should be forwarded to Frances Davis, 1240 Fairview Drive, Leesport, PA 19533 or call (610) 926-3548.

Lycoming Needs Dairy Representative

LYCOMING (Lycoming Co.) — Lycoming County dairy princess and dairy maid candidates are needed.

Dairy princess contestants must be between the ages of 16 and 24. She, herself, or a parent must be employed in the dairy industry. This includes working on a dairy farm, raising replacement heifers, selling dairy supplies, working in a dairy processing plant, or working in a dairy store. She could also qualify by owning a 4-H or FFA Dairy Project. She must also be single and never had a child.

Dairy maid candidates will assist the dairy princess throughout the year. These candidates must be at least 13 years old and have a relative involved in the dairy industry or she, herself be involved in it. She could also have a FFA or 4-H dairy project.

Contestants interested should call Wanda Derr at (570) 323-4949 Rhonda Fogleman at (570) 546-0714 by April 20.

On Being a Farm Wife

Joyce Bupp

"Ummm, what do I smell?"

On any given day around here about lunch time, the answer to that query could vary widely.

One recent morning, it was the aroma of beef tenderizing in a slow oven in a sauce of brown gravy, waiting to be flooded into a waiting pond of mashed potatoes. That proved a workable choice on this particular day when I grabbed lunch, headed off on an errand and returned to find the leftovers vanished, with a used dinnerplate and eating utensils in the sink. Sometimes, it might be meatloaf and scalloped potatoes, or baked chicken and baked potatoes. Perhaps a casserole or lasagna or ham or spaghetti sauce or soup simmering on a back burner.

On days with a spare minute, the mid-day atmosphere around the kitchen might hint of a cake in progress, or cookies just about ready to come out of the oven. Late summer finds the kitchen reminiscent of a tomato cannery, as the basement shelves get stocked with our annual needs of canned tomatoes, tomato sauce and salsa. A favorite of chillier weather is the house hung heavy with the fragrance of apple butter cooking down in the oven.

But on this day, the greeting uttered by those entering the house is slightly less enthusiastic.

"Ughh, what is that smell?"

Most folks could probably make lots of guesses, and still come up short the correct answer. And when you finally admit what it is, the answer might generate a blank look.

"Ground. I'm cooking ground.

Or to be more environmentally correct, I'm cooking soil. Potting soil.

The house is full of this pungent, earthy scent because I don't care to repeat a frustrating shortcut undertaken last year. A pointed note — written by me to myself — that I came across a few days ago issued specific instructions in the capital-letter, computer-style, equivalent of shouting.

"Do not try to start these tomato seeds without sterilizing the soil."

See, last year, in a time crunch, I didn't. A day came when realization hit that it was well overdue to start tomato seeds if I was going to have my favorite varieties to plant out in the garden, specifically those not usually available as started plants. Packets of seed were here, I had just neglected sterilizing starter medium in which to sprout them. So, I used clean containers and commercially-packaged potting soil, which I really thought was sterilized. But I didn't read the label for that specific criteria.

It was a short-sighted shortcut. Because the seeds sprouted, poked their little heads through the soil surface, and soon after keeled over with damp-off disease. Which is generally preventable simply by sterilizing starter soil a few hours in a slow oven to kill the responsible bacteria. Or, irresponsible bacteria, maybe.

Whatever, I ended up buying tomato plants and restarting a few specialty ones. And they all seemed to take incredibly long to start ripening.

This season, it's back to the proverbial "Square one," aiming to repeat the earliest-ripening tomato I've ever grown. It's a plum-type called Enchantment; a thoughtful reader out there sent me some seeds years ago with a recommendation on how early it was. After starting them inside, I plunked two of the little plants into those wall-o-water devices, sort of a mini-"teepee" with water between two layers of plastic which protect the plant from chills, or worse.

Once they got roots established and the sun grew brighter, the plants literally climbed out the top of the plastic shell complete with blooms ready for pollinating. They were the first to ripen, and the last still on the vine months later when frost hit.

Naturally, I was enchanted by the qualities of the Enchantment tomato and ordered more to keep on hand.

So, please excuse the pungent odor temporarily permeating our house.

'Pot-In-Pot' Grows Trendy

COLUMBUS, Ohio — A relatively new landscape and nursery stock production technique that combines conventional field and container practices is finding a successful niche in the industry.

Pot-in-pot (PIP), the technique of growing container trees and shrubs in a holding pot permanently placed in the ground, is an alternative system to field culture, or growing trees and shrubs directly in the soil. Pot-in-pot is becoming very popular but it has some critical issues that need to be considered.

'Pot-in-pot is an increasing trend in the United States," said Hannah Mathers, an Ohio State University nursery and landscape specialist. "Container production is getting to be a bigger deal. On the West Coast, container production represents about 45 percent of nursery production. It's anticipated that container production will continue to grow and eventually pass field production, and pot-in-pot is part of that growth."

Mathers speculates the growing popularity of pot-in-pot production is due in part to the many advantages the technique offers landscape and nursery professionals over field production.

'For one thing a tree can be sold year-round in container production," said Mathers. "If you put a tree in the ground, you basically only have two time periods to lift that tree for sale, spring or fall. But with pot-in-pot, you've got a lot more flexibility with the material."

Trees and shrubs raised in pot-in-pot production also tend to grow faster because the soil-less medium used to grow the plants enables professionals to add additional fertilizer and water, something that can't be done with soils.

"What used to take two years in the field could take only one year in a container," said Mathers. "So you can turn more units off that acreage of land, about three times the production versus field culture."

Pot-in-pot production is also more environmentally friendly than field production because it reduces soil mining, a condition where the topsoil is removed with the root balls in conventional field culture.

Research has shown that soil removal due to 'mining' has enormous implications to the economic viability of a field nursery. It is estimated that the harvesting of 44-inch diameter balled-and-burlapped stock can result in the loss of 470 tons of soil per acre. This is an average of 94 tons of soil lost per acre during a 5-year rotation or 2.8 inches of topsoil lost in 5 years.

"Of course pot-in-pot requires relatively permanent modifications to a nursery field that result in soil profile changes," said Mathers. "But if for some reason you reverted a field from pot-in-pot back to conventional culture, the soil levels would be virtually unchanged."

Despite such advantages, however, the biggest drawback in developing a pot-in-pot system is the cost, which can run $30,000-$32,000 an acre. Mathers said drainage and irrigation are the two biggest driving forces behind the high cost. "A drainage line needs to be placed under every row of pots, because whenever you grow a plant in a container, you get what's called perched water, where a certain amount of water in the container never evaporates," she said. 'So you need the drainage system to eliminate as much of that water as possible."

Trees and shrubs grown using the pot-in-pot technique may be of higher quality, but Mathers said the market for such quality has to exist for a business to be successful in selling its products.

Gardeners Advised To Heed Seed Package Information

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — The gardening season is just around the corner. The forsythia is beginning to bud and spring bulb stems and foliage are beginning to emerge from the ground. It's time to start deciding what to plant in the garden this year.

Planting seeds offers gardeners a low-cost opportunity to stick with favorite plants and try out new ones. When considering seeds, advises a horticulture expert in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences, you should ponder information found on the package.

Early-spring planning with seed packages, according to Elsa Sanchez, assistant professor of horticultural systems management, makes a garden better in summer.

• Picture: A picture of the plant in flower or harvested fruit or vegetable typically is found on the front of the seed package. The picture offers useful information like flower type and color and what to expect when harvesting a fruit or vegetable. Remember that the picture is usually of the flower, fruit or vegetable at its best, so use it only as a guide.

• Plant Description: Often it is difficult to determine the form of a plant based on the picture. Seed packages usually provide a written description of the plant including the plant cultivar, plant height, days to harvest or bloom, and habits, such as "climbing, upright," etc.

• Uses and Weight: Seed packages often suggest uses for the plant. Some examples are for containers, beds, winter houseplants, trellises, etc. The number of seeds or weight of the seed also is found on the package.

• Date: The package will have the year for which the seeds were packaged. For example, "Packed For Season 2002." This information is important because as seeds age they loose viability. If seeds have a germination rate of 80 percent in 2002, the rate can be expected to be lower in 2003; for example, 50 percent.

• Planting Directions: The seed package should have directions on when to plant the seeds, depending on where it will be planted in the United States. The directions should include planting depth, plant spacing and plant exposure requirements (full or partial sun or shade). This section also will advise whether the seeds should be planted indoors prior to planting outdoors. The planting directions often also will contain basic directions for the care of the plant.

Seed packages for some plants contain additional information.

• Perennials: The hardiness zone for the plant will be found on the back of the package. The cold hardiness zone is based on the lowest temperature the plant will grow in. Since cold hardiness zones in Pennsylvania range from three to seven, it is important to know what zone the plant will be grown in.

This information sometimes is included on the seed package; it also can be found in gardening books. Seed packages for perennial seed also will include when the plant will bloom.

• Seed Mixes: Typical packaged seed mixes include: wildflowers, gourds and salad mixes. Additional information offered on these seed packages is the percentage of each seed type, the area the seeds will cover, the life cycle of the plants (such as annual, biennial or perennial), and the percentage of inert matter or vermiculite. Inert matter and vermiculite are included to help broadcast the seed uniformly.

"It is a good idea to keep the seed package after planting the seeds as a reference for future care, harvesting and planting," says Sanchez. "The diversity of seeds is exciting because it offers gardeners virtually limitless planting combinations of flowers, fruits and vegetables to grow and enjoy."

Wanted: Well-Kept Farms For Dairy of Distinction Merit

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) – Pennsylvania dairy farms are invited to apply for this year's Dairy of Distinction Award from the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program. Applications must be submitted by April 15.

The award is based on the idea that attractive farmsteads enhance consumer confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales and public support for the industry. Dairies receiving the highest scores in each of 10 Pennsylvania districts will be awarded an 18- by 24-inch Dairy of Distinction sign to display in front of their farm.

"This program is run by volunteers and recognizes the hard work and dedication of dairy producers who promote a positive image for the dairy industry," said Mike O'Connor, secretary of the Pennsylvania Dairy of Distinction program and professor of dairy science extension in Penn State's College of Agricultural Sciences.

Roadside judging will take place in May. Judges will look at factors that can be controlled by the farmer, such as clean and attractively finished buildings; neat landscaping, ditches, roads, and lanes; and well-maintained fences. They also will take into account other aspects of the farm, such as cleanliness of animals, the barnyard, feed areas, and manure management.

Crystal Spring Farm, Mifflintown

Winning farms will be notified in late June. Because this is a yearly award, previous winners are reevaluated each year to see if they are still maintaining excellent standards.

To receive an application, call Mike O'Connor at (814) 863-3913 or e-mail him at MOConnor@das.psu edu

Since 1987, Pennsylvania's Dairy of Distinction Program has recognized more than 750 dairy farms. The Pennsylvania program is part of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program, which also includes New York, New Jersey, and Vermont. Dairies in these states can contact the program secretary in their state for applications.

How Is Your Farm Scored?

Awards will be based upon neatness, good maintenance, and other factors, which can be controlled by the farmer Attractive background scenery should not be weighed heavily in judging All judging observations should be made from a vehicle at one or more points on an adjacent public highway (or if farm is off the road, the nearest lane) Judging should give equal consideration to old wood construction and new construction of metal or concrete block.

The award program may be used for subsequent advertising or promotion activities for dairy producers or dairy farming Farmers who apply for awards agree that, if selected, they will cooperate with these activities and make all reasonable efforts to maintain both the exterior and interior of their properties in an acceptable condition

How The Judging Works

Judging teams will visit farms during the month of May Farms will be judged each year as the award is presented on an annual basis Any dairy failing to maintain appearance standards will be asked to remove their sign The Dairy of Distinction signs remain the property of the committee, not the property of the dairy farmer All farms must achieve a compliance score of 90 percent of their Dairy of Distinction score card Your cooperative or milk handler will be contacted to approve your milk quality

Rules

1 The Dairy of Distinction sign remains the property of the Northeast Dairy Farm Beautification Program Committee (NEDFBP)
2 The post and bracket shall be supplied by and maintained by the dairy farmer NEDFBP suggests that a wood post 4"x4"x12' or iron pipe 2"x12' be used Posts or pipe should be installed and maintained in true vertical position with 8' above ground Top of the bracket should be lower than six inches from the top of the post In addition, NEDFBP suggests that the sign be mounted in a frame to provide additional stability
3 The sign shall be displayed in front of the dairy at roadside An attractive post and bracket, or other frame shall be used to display the sign. No more than three signs should be displayed from the sign frame or post, and all shall be of a style, general size and quality comparable to the Dairy of Distinction sign The sign should be secured on all sides to avoid wind damage
4 Signs shall not be moved to other premises New owners of a Dairy of Distinction farm must apply to retain the sign
5 Replacement of damaged signs shall be at the discretion of the committee
6 No producer shall be charged with scoring or sign expenses
7 The judges' decision will be final
8 Judging will take place between May 1 and May 31
9 Farms awarded a Dairy of Distinction sign in previous years will be judged between April 1 and April 30 If they do not qualify, they will be rejudged between May 1 and May 31 so they have the opportunity to keep the sign
10 Farms that do not requalify will return the sign to their regional Dairy of Distinction Committee

Dairy of Distinction
2002 Pennsylvania Application

PURPOSE OF PROGRAM

Attractive dairy farms give the consumer greater confidence in the wholesomeness of milk and stimulate milk sales which encourages public support for the dairy industry. The award gives recognition to the dairy farmer for maintaining a well-kept farmstead.

ELIGIBILITY

All Northeast dairy farms producing milk for sale are invited to submit an application for the award. Dairies receiving the 10 highest scores in each of the 21 districts will receive an 18"x24" Dairy of Distinction sign to be displayed in front of their farm

Wake Up To Eggs

WAKE-UP CASSEROLE

Layer in greased 9x13-inch baking dish:

6 cups cooked potatoes, grated
2 cups cheddar cheese
2 cups cooked cubed ham
Onion, celery, peppers, chopped, as much as desired

Beat together the following and pour over all:

7 eggs
1 cup milk
½ teaspoon dry mustard

Cover and bake at 350 degrees for one hour. Uncover and bake 15 minutes more. Good for brunch.

Mabel Harnish
Willow Street

SCRAMBLED EGGS WITH CHEESE

4 eggs
⅓ cup milk
⅓ cup cheese, your choice, shredded or diced
Salt and pepper to taste
Butter

Beat together eggs and milk. Mix in cheese. Add salt and pepper to taste. Melt a pat of butter in skillet and add egg mixture. Cook on medium heat for 5-10 minutes, or until eggs aren't runny. Makes 2 servings.

Sara Derstine
Tioga Co. Dairy Ambassador

SUNDAY BRUNCH CASSEROLE

1 pound bulk sausage
8 eggs
10 slices bread, cut into cubes (about 9-10 cups)
3 cups milk
2 cups shredded cheddar cheese
2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
10-ounce package frozen cut asparagus, thawed, drained
2 tablespoons melted butter
2 tablespoons flour
1 tablespoons dry mustard
2 teaspoons dried basil
1 teaspoon salt

Crumble sausage into large skillet. Cook over medium heat until browned, stirring occasionally. Drain off drippings. Whisk eggs in large bowl. Add sausage and remaining ingredients. Combine well. Spoon into 9x13-inch baking dish. Cover and refrigerate eight hours or overnight. Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Bake 60-70 minutes or until knife inserted near center comes out clean. Let stand five minutes before cutting into squares. Serve hot.

Julie Hoover
Douglassville

CINNAMON NOODLE KUGEL

Cooking spray
4-ounces Neufchatel cheese
4-ounces fat-freee ricotta cheese
½ cup sugar
4 eggs
1 cup skim or low-fat milk
½ cup butter, melted
½ teaspoon ground cinnamon
8-ounces dry egg noodles, cooked according to package directions
Additional cinnamon, optional

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Evenly coat a 1½-quart casserole dish with cooking spray.

In large bowl, beat together cheeses until light and fluffy. Gradually beat in sugar until thoroughly blended. Beat in eggs, one at a time, until blended. Gradually beat in milk, butter, and cinnamon until smooth. Stir in noodles. Pour mixture into prepared casserole dish, smoothing top and sprinkling with extra cinnamon, if desired. Bake until thermometer inserted near center registers at least 160 degrees and kugel is a light, golden brown, about 35-40 minutes. Allow to cool 10 minutes before serving.

FIRECRACKER DEVILED EGGS

6 hard-cooked eggs
⅓ cup mild salsa
3 tablespoons reduced-fat sour cream
3 tablespoons minced green onion
1 tablespoon chopped black olives
1 teaspoon lemon juice
Green onions, red pepper strips or parsley, optional

Cut eggs in half lengthwise. Remove yolks and set whites aside. In small bowl, mash yolks with fork. Stir in remaining ingredients utnil well blended. Refill whites, using one heaping tablespoons yolk mixture for each egg half. Chill to blend flavors. Garnish with green onions, red pepper strips or parsley if desired.

Featured Recipe

A variety of peppers and salsas are showing up at omelet bars across the nation. You can offer the same bold, dramatic flavor at home.

Peppers, chili, taco sauces and salsas lend themselves to egg dishes. Vary the flavor by experimenting with a variety of chili peppers and sauces. Substitute a variety of vegetables.

OMELET PIQUANT

½ cup chopped sweet red or green peppers
½ cup water, divided
1 8.5-ounce can cream-style corn
4-ounce can chopped green chilies
2 tablespoons minced green onions with tops
¼ teaspoon garlic powder
1 tablespoon butter, divided
6 eggs
¼ cup taco sauce, divided

In small saucepan, stir together peppers and 2 tablespoons water. Cover and cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until tender, about 4-5 minutes. Stir in remaining vegetables and garlic powder. Cook until heated through. Keep warm.

In medium bowl, beat together eggs and remaining water until blended. For each omelet, heat 1 teaspoon of butter in 10-inch omelet pan or skillet over medium heat until just hot enough to sizzle a drop of water. Pour in half cup of the egg mixture. Mixture should set immediately at edges. With an inverted pancake turner, carefully push cooked portions at edges toward center so uncooked portions can reach hot pan surface, tilting pan and moving as necessary.

When top is thickened and no visible liquid egg remains, spoon ½ cup reserved hot corn filling down the center of the omelet. With pancake turner, fold sides of omelet over filling. Gently slide onto plate. Top with ¼ cup taco sauce. Repeat with remaining omelets.

Cloudy egg white nothing to worry about

When I cracked an egg open last week, the white was cloudy. Was it unsafe, or just old?

Actually, a cloudy-looking egg white doesn't have anything to do with food safety The bacteria most often associated with whole eggs, Salmonella enteritidis, isn't something you can see or smell, so you can't use cues like that to determine an egg's safety

Actually, that cloudiness most likely comes from harmless carbon dioxide that hasn't yet escaped through the egg shell That can happen when eggs are refrigerated at low temperatures — between 32 degrees and 39 degrees Fahrenheit — immediately after they're laid, rather than the 10 degrees to 15 degrees that's standard It can also happen if the egg is oiled within an hour after it's laid Oiling helps maintain quality by sealing egg shell's pores Sealing the pores also seals in the carbon dioxide

In either case, the carbon dioxide will slowly seep out Because of that, you can just about bet that an egg with a cloudy white is probably fresher than normal You can tell if an egg is older if the white spreads out thinly in the pan when you crack the egg or if its yolk breaks easily All this doesn't necessarily mean the egg is unsafe It just means it's old, and its quality isn't the highest

Expiration dates on egg cartons aren't very good indicators of safety, either They just indicate when the eggs were packed The U.S Department of Agriculture says as long as you purchase a carton of eggs before the date expires, you should be able to use all the eggs safely for three to five weeks after you purchase them

Some egg cartons are stamped with packing dates, indicated with a three-digit code, instead of expiration dates Packing dates are numbered 001 to 365, with Jan 1 being 001 and Dec 31 being 365 However, no matter how old (or young) the eggs are, it won't help anyone determine if the egg is contaminated with S enteritidis

That's why it's so important to keep eggs refrigerated — S enteritidis can't multiply at temperatures below 45 degrees Only an estimated 1 in 20,000 eggs is contaminated with the bacteria Cooking eggs thoroughly kills the bug, but people still use raw eggs in certain recipes (or aren't careful enough to prevent cross-contamination between raw eggs and other consumables) That has made tens of thousands of people ill in the last 15 years, and has killed several dozen Refrigerating eggs is the best defense

Cornell And Korean Researchers Report New Anti-Cancer Mechanism Of VitaminC

Linda McCandless
Cornell University Extension

A team of scientists from Cornell University, working at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, and from Seoul National University, South Korea, report a new mechanism by which vitamin C fights cancer. Their findings appear in the Jan. 12 issue of Lancet, the international journal for physicians published in London.

C.Y. Lee, Cornell professor of food science and technology, and his South Korean colleagues, Ki Won Lee, Hyong Joo Lee and Kyung-Sun Kang, found that vitamin C blocks the carcinogenic effects of hydrogen peroxide on intercellular communication. Until this finding, the mechanism for vitamin C's inhibitory effects on carcinogenic tumor promotion was not understood.

"Vitamin C has been considered one of the most important essential nutrients in our diet since the discovery in 1907 that it prevents scurvy," says Lee. "In addition, vitamin C has several important functions in our body for the synthesis of amino acids and collagen, wound healing, metabolism of iron, lipids and cholesterol and others. In particular, vitamin C is a well known antioxidant that scavenges free radicals." (An anti-oxidant is one of many chemicals that reduce or prevent oxidation, thus preventing cell and tissue damage from free radicals in the body.)

"Vitamin C prevents the inhibition of gap-junction intercellular communication (GJIC) induced by hydrogen peroxide," says Lee. GJIC is essential for maintaining normal cell growth. Inhibition of GJIC is strongly related to the carcinogenic process, especially to tumor promotion. Hydrogen peroxide, a tumor promoter, inhibits GJIC by changing a special protein, connexin43. When rat liver epithelial cells were treated with vitamin C, the researchers report, inhibition of GJIC induced by hydrogen peroxide was prevented.

Since other free-radical scavengers, such as propylgallate and Trolox did not prevent inhibition of GJIC by hydrogen peroxide, as reported previously, Lee and his coworkers believed that vitamin C's antitumor activity operated through a mechanism other than by scavenging free radicals.

The report adds that quercetin, a phytochemical found in apples, has even stronger anticancer activity than vitamin C. (Phytochemicals, such as flavanoids and polyphenols, are plant chemicals that contain protective, disease-preventing compounds.)

"The most powerful weapon we have in the fight against cancer is prevention," concludes Lee. "A diet rich in phytochemicals and vitamin C will reduce the risk of cancer. These phytochemicals and nutrients are most readily available in fresh fruits and vegetables." These recommendations echo those of Lee and his Cornell colleagues in a report in the journal Nature (June 22, 2000).

In the Lancet article, the researchers suggest that "inhibiting tumor promotion" (a reversible and long-term process) may be a more practical strategy in preventing cancer than "preventing tumor initiation" (an irreversible and short-term process).

Lancet, which is published weekly from editorial offices in London and New York, meets the needs of physicians by adding to their clinical knowledge and alerting them to current issues affecting the practice of medicine world-wide. The journal is available online at www.lancet.com.

Savvy Supplement Use

One of the fastest growing industries in the United States is the dietary supplement industry. When you walk through your local supermarket, drugstore or even at the mall you will see aisles of supplements that are marketed on the premise that they will help improve your health and well being.

Given the abundance of products there is both accurate and conflicting information available about dietary supplements. In order to help you and I make wise choices the Food and Drug's Center for Food Safety and Applied Nutrition developed information to help guide consumers in making decisions about whether or not to use a dietary supplement.

For many people the use of a dietary supplement can have positive health benefits, but under some conditions the use of such products is really not necessary and can be harmful to the individual. So if you are considering the use of a supplement, whether it be vitamins, minerals, herbal products or some other substance you need to ask yourself some questions before starting dietary supplement use.

Do I need to think about my total diet? Yes. The best way to obtain the nutrients you need is through a varied and balanced diet.

There are times however when this may not be possible and a dietary supplement is beneficial in maintaining nutrient stores.

However, there are cases where too much of a nutrient can cause problems and to this end the government has established recommended upper safe limits of vitamins and minerals. Just remember that more is not necessarily better when it comes to supplement intake.

Should I check with my doctor or healthcare provider before using a supplement? Definitely, yes! This is especially so for certain populations such as pregnant or nursing women, those with a chronic health problem such as high blood pressure, heart disease or diabetes, if you are taking other medications and for children. Many supplements contain active ingredients that can affect different people in different ways, so don't put yourself at unnecessary risk. Some supplements can interact with medications, both prescription and over the counter. For example, Coumadin, ginkgo biloba (herb), aspirin, and vitamin E each act to thin the blood and if taken together can increase the possibility of internal bleeding.

Some other tips would include asking yourself:

- Do the claims for this product sound too good to be true? If they do, then this is not the product for you. Many times very simplistic conclusions are drawn from complex information with an exaggerated claim made in order to sell a product. Try to seek out accurate and reliable sources of information before making a decision to use the product. Unfortunately, there are no "quick fixes" for health problems so don't be mislead by dramatic claims.
- Other myths that you may hear are "even if a product doesn't help, it at least can't hurt." You can not assume this to be the case. We are just beginning to learn about the effects of supplements on our bodies. So for many of these products the jury is still out on how much and exactly what component of the vitamin, mineral or herb is safe for our health.
- "When I see the term 'natural' that means that a product is healthful and safe." The term natural on a label is not well defined and can be used to imply benefits of health and safety when it has not been scientifically proven. The term natural does not assure wholesomeness or that these food-like substances have a milder effect than a drug. For example, many weight loss products claim to be "natural" or "herbal" but this does not necessarily make them safe.
- "A product is safe when there is no cautionary information on the product label" is another myth. Manufacturers of dietary supplements may not necessarily include warnings about potential adverse effects. Dietary supplements do not undergo the same rigorous testing that drugs undergo before being marketed, so if you want to know about the safety of a specific product you should contact the manufacturer directly. It is the manufacturer's responsibility to determine that the supplement it produces or distributes is safe and that there is evidence that label claims are truthful and not misleading.

So if you are taking a dietary supplement or considering a supplement whether it be vitamin, mineral, herbal or other think about these questions and for more information check with your health care provider or go to the FDA website www.cfsan.fda.gov under dietary supplements.

Eggs...Separate Facts And Fiction

Fiction: Consumption of dietary cholesterol is the leading risk factor for heart disease.

Fact: Scientific studies have shown that saturated fat in the diet increases the risk of heart disease more than dietary cholesterol intake. And while a Large egg has 215 mg of cholesterol, it only contains 1.5 grams of saturated fat. More importantly, eggs provide antioxidants, folate, and other B vitamins that have been shown to decrease heart disease risk.

Fiction: The latest research shows that eggs should be limited in the diet in order to prevent heart disease.

Fact: Consistent with numerous other studies, researchers from the Harvard School of Public Health concluded that eating an egg a day does not increase heart disease or stroke risk in healthy men and women. This National Institute of Health-funded study investigated the eating habits of 117,000 adults over an 8- to 14-year period.

Fiction: Egg yolks are high in fat and contribute little else to the diet.

Fact: Egg yolks contain 45 percent of the egg's protein, numerous minerals, and the majority of the egg's vitamins. And they provide all of this for only 59 calories (a whole egg has 75 calories) and 4.5 grams of total fat, 1.5 grams of which are saturated fat. So, unless your doctor has prescribed a special egg-free diet for you, you can continue to enjoy nutrient-dense eggs.

Fact: The nutrient content of eggs is not affected by whether they are fertile, free-range, organic, or vegetarian. Due to higher production costs and lower volume per farm, these eggs are generally more expensive.

Fertile eggs do not keep as well as non-fertile eggs. While some ethnic groups consider them a delicacy, there are no known advantages to consuming them.

Free-range eggs are produced by hens raised outdoors or that have daily access to the outdoors. However, due to seasonal conditions, few hens are actually raised outside. Some egg farms are indoor floor operations, and these are sometimes inaccurately referred to as free-range.

Organic eggs are produced by hens that were fed ingredients that were grown in a manner to preserve the integrity of the soil with minimal use of pesticides, fungicides, herbicides, and commercial fertilizers.

Fact: Varying the diet of hens has produced a variety of nutrient-enhanced eggs. Some of the successful experiments include eggs produced with reduced levels of fat, lower cholesterol, and increased levels of vitamins and/or Omega-3 fatty acids. These specialty eggs are found under various brand names, and, due to increased production costs, are sold at a higher retail price.

Fact: Hormones are not fed to poultry in the U.S. In fact, egg production has increased over the year as a result of breeding and better nutrition, housing, and general management of facilities.

Fiction: An egg that floats in a glass of salt-water is not fresh.

Fact: This test has no relationship to the freshness of table eggs. While eggs do take in air as they age, the size of the air cell varies from egg to egg when they are laid. Consequently, a freshly-laid egg and an older egg might react very similarly.

Fiction: Egg freshness is difficult to determine.

Fact: The best way to judge freshness is to check the three-number code on the small side of the carton. It's the Julian date with 001 representing Jan. 1 and 365 standing for Dec. 31. This is the day the eggs were packed, and they'll keep in your refrigerator at least four to five weeks after this date without significant quality loss. If you can't find a Julian date, plan to use eggs within about three weeks or so of purchase to allow for the possibility that the retailer may have temporarily stored them before you purchased them. However, properly handled and stored, eggs rarely "spoil."

Fiction: Eggs do not need to be refrigerated.

Fact: An egg left at room temperature for one day will age as much as it would in a week in the refrigerator. Not only that, but Salmonella bacteria will not grow at standard refrigerator temperatures.

Fiction: Eggs should be stored in the slots on the refrigerator door.

Fact: The best place to keep eggs is in the original carton on an inside shelf. Not only does the temperature on the door fluctuate when the door is opened, but slamming the door can cause breakage. Furthermore, the carton actually helps prevent eggs from picking up odors from other foods and helps prevent the loss of carbon dioxide and water from the eggs.

Fact: Not at all. These eggs are still entirely fit to eat, and the blood spot can be removed with the tip of a knife. Blood spots are caused by the rupture of a blood vessel on the yolk surface during formation of the egg, or by a similar accident in the wall of the hen's oviduct. Less than one percent of all eggs produced have blood spots, and most of these are detected by electronic spotters before they ever reach the market.

Fiction: Brown-shelled eggs are superiors to white.

Fact: Shell color, determined by the breed of the hen, does not affect quality, nutrients, flavor, or cooking characteristics. However, since brown-egg layers are slightly larger birds and require more food, their eggs are usually more expensive than white.

Fact: These natural, entirely edible parts of the egg called chalazae anchor the yolk in the center of the thick white. They are neither imperfections nor beginning embryos. They do not interfere with the cooking or beating of the white and need not be removed. In fact, the more prominent they are, the fresher the egg.

Woodland Wildflowers Signal Spring, Healthy Forests

RANCE SCOTT HARMON
Penn State Forest Resources Extension

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre Co.) — After months of drab winter hues, wildflowers are brightening Penn's Woods and proclaiming the arrival of spring.

Many woodland wildflowers take advantage of the few weeks when the forest floor is awash in sunlight after the soil thaws. Soon leaves from shrubs and trees will cast shade over low growing plants for the remainder of the growing season. To take advantage of this brief window of opportunity, many woodland wildflowers use energy stored in underground bulbs, roots, or rootstalks to jump-start the rapid growth of leaves and flowers. Many bloom for only a week or two, although the leaves may persist longer.

Here are some flowering gems to look for in Pennsylvania woodlands this month. (Most bloom sometime between late March and early May):

Harbinger of spring is one of our first wildflowers to bloom. Its clusters of tiny white flowers "sprinkled" with reddish brown anthers gives it another common name: pepper-and-salt.

Trout lily leaves have blotches of color reminiscent of the fish of the same name. The nodding flowers can be white or yellow.

Hepatica flowers may be white, pink, or blue. Each flower grows on a separate stalk and has between 5 and 12 parts. Because of its lobed leaves, hepatica is also known as liver leaf.

Dutchman's breeches has white flowers that dangle from the stem, reminding some folks of pantaloons hanging on a clothesline.

Spring beauty has narrow leaves and 5-parted white flowers, often with pink veins.

Trillium has large petals and showy flowers that, as its name suggests, come in three parts. Our three common native species have white or purple flowers.

Bloodroot has white flowers with 8-10 delicate petals around a golden-yellow center. The deeply lobed leaf often curls around the flower-stalk. As the name implies, the "root," which is actually an underground stem, produces a red juice.

A rich mix of native wildflowers is one indication of healthy conditions in the lower layer of the forest, which is known as the understory. Healthy forests contain a variety of flowers, shrubs, trees, and other plants, which occur in layers, from ground level to the treetops. This variety and complexity allows many different animals to thrive and fosters environmental stability. When strands of this intricate web of life are missing, the entire ecosystem can be altered. Predicting the effect of missing species on the whole system can be very complicated if not impossible.

However, in some Pennsylvania woodlands, the lack of tree seedlings, wildflowers, and other plants leaves little doubt that there is a problem. Two of the culprits behind a dearth of understory growth are an overabundance of white-tailed deer and invasive plants.

Like most humans, deer are selective eaters. They browse on their favorite forest plants when they are available and resort to less-preferred foods when their favorites can't be found. Long-term studies in the Allegheny National Forest show that as deer increase in an area, wildflowers and other ground cover species decrease.

To compound the problem, deer generally avoid eating most ferns. As a result, large expanses of ferns cover the forest floor in many Pennsylvania woodlands. To many people, a verdant blanket of ferns in an open, park-like forest is a beautiful site to behold. However, these conditions are signs that something is very wrong, ecologically speaking.

Without a vigorous growth of new tree seedlings, the future of the forest is in jeopardy, and animals that depended on the missing plants for food and shelter may not find what they need to survive. Studies in the Allegheny Forest show that high deer density causes a decrease in songbird diversity, in addition to the decreases in wildflower and ground cover species mentioned previously.

Invasive plants are another cause of decreased plant diversity in the forest understory. Most invasive plants come from other parts of the globe.

In their new home in Penn's Woods, they proliferate because the natural controls that keep the plants in check in their homelands do not occur here. Such natural controls include specific kinds of diseases and insects. Like ferns, introduced species can take over a site, displacing native plants and preventing seedlings from developing into trees.

If you are one of Pennsylvania's half-million forest landowners, take another look at your woodlands. Do you see a diverse array of native wildflowers and other low-growing plants?

If not, do you have a sea of ferns or a predominance of just one or two types of plants? If so, chances are that deer or invasive plants are affecting your woodlands. While these are tough problems to address, there are resources available to assist you.

The Pennsylvania Forest Stewardship Program provides private forestland owners with information and assistance to promote healthy and productive forests. It produces many free publications, including Forest Stewardship Bulletin #9: Understanding and Conserving Biological Wealth in Our Forests, Invasive Plants Fact Sheets, and From the Woods: White-tailed deer.

To request these publications or to learn more about the Forest Stewardship Program, call 1-800-235-WISE (toll-free), send e-mail to RNRext@psu.edu, or write to Forest Stewardship Program, Forest Resources Extension, The Pennsylvania State University, 7 Ferguson Building, University Park, PA 16802.

The Pennsylvania Bureau of Forestry and USDA Forest Service, in partnership with the Penn State's Forest Resources Extension, have many upcoming Pennsylvania Forest Stewardship Programs scheduled throughout the state. For a schedule, contact them at the above listed phone and e-mail addresses.

Backyard Composting Workshops, Free Bins

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin Co.) — The Pennsylvania Department of Environmental Protection (DEP) and Penn State Cooperative Extension are teaming up to offer composting workshops and free backyard composting bins to Franklin County residents.

Each person who preregisters for a workshop and attends will receive a free composting bin, as long as supplies last, and with the limitation that only one bin will be given per household.

Two workshops will be conducted at the Penn State Cooperative Extension Office which is located at 191 Franklin Farm Lane in Chambersburg on Thursday, May 2. The morning workshop is from 10 a.m.-11 a.m. and the evening workshop is from 7 p.m.-8 p.m.

A third workshop will be conducted on Tuesday, May 7, at Tayamentasachta, from 7 p.m.-8 p.m. Tayamentasachta, A Center For Environmental Studies, Greencastle-Antrim School District, is located at 500 Leitersburg Street, in Greencastle.

To attend the workshops and receive a free composting bin, you must preregister by calling your Penn State Cooperative Extension Office at (717) 263-9226.

The workshops are being sponsored by Tayamentasachta, PADEP, the Franklin County Recycling Program, and Penn State Cooperative Extension.

Children's Opportunities — Our Responsibilities

Children learn about the world by experimenting. Learning how to use simple hand tools such as a measuring tape not only entertains children but helps them feel good about what they are doing and teaches many skills. Children enjoy using the same things adults use: pots and pans, dress-up clothes, and other items found around the home. For numerous ideas, visit the Better Kid Care Web site, www.betterkidcare.psu.edu or ask for "Toddler Topics," a free series of six newsletters addressing child development as well as practical ideas. Better Kid Care telephone help line: 1-800-859-8340.

LEESPORT (Berks Co.) — This is the theme selected by the National Association for the Education of Young Children for this year's "Week of the Young Child." This year it will be celebrated during the week of April 7. This week was first set aside 32 years ago to focus public attention on the needs of young children and their families and to recognize the early childhood programs and services that meet those needs.

Penn State Cooperative Extension's Better Kid Care also recognized the needs of young children and their families. Better Kid Care works closely with childcare providers and parents to provide childcare training, educational materials and resources.

Sue Giachero, Penn State Cooperative Extension family living agent in Berks County, reminds us that, "Today more than ever before, we know about the importance of children's earliest years in shaping their learning and development. It is important children's environments, relationships and experiences at home, in childcare, in schools and in their community promote their early learning. As a child's first teacher, parents often realize how important their job is but can feel overwhelmed and not know where to begin."

According to Sue Giachero, "Parenting is one the most important jobs. Although it is a job with great joy, it can also be very stressful. Many parents take on the task of parenting without any prior experience or training." Sue Giachero also adds, "This lack of experience can add to the stress of being a new parent." To help parents acquire information that will make these early years less stressful, Penn State Cooperative Extension Family Living Agents have created a learn-at-home newsletter series, "Toddler Topics."

According to Sue Giachero, "Toddler Topics" is a series of six newsletters addressing various areas of child development as well as providing practical resources and ideas. Articles in this series include topics relating to nutrition, literacy, grandparents, behavior, safety, and family fun as well as a variety of other topics. These newsletters will be distributed at no cost to more than 120,000 parents across the state. If you would like to receive "Toddler Topics," contact Sue Giachero at the Berks County Cooperative Extension office at (610) 378-1327.

Changing Face Of Grandparenthood

Matthew Kaplan
Penn State
Associate Professor
Ag And Extension Education

Last year marked a milestone in American history that many people missed. The first of the 76 million Americans born between the years 1946 and 1964 — the well-known "baby boomer" generation — have reached the age of 55. This landmark occurrence signals some interesting changes in the enterprise of grandparenting.

First, we will see a surge in the numbers of grandparents. In their book, "The Nanas and the Papas: A Boomers' Guide to Grandparenting," Kathryn and Allen Zullo note that by the year 2005, there will be an estimated 80 million grandparents. Of those, nearly half will be baby boomers, and they are likely to be quite different from the grandparents of previous eras.

They should be more liberal (after all, this is the Woodstock generation!), healthier (thanks to dietary and medical advances), more active and wealthier. Further, they will identify with different historical events, have different ideas about work and play and have different heroes.

All of these differences translate into anticipated changes in the way grandparents spend time with their grandchildren. For example, it will be more common to see grandparents and grandchildren, side by side, engaging in such high-octane activities as mountain biking and martial arts.

Many grandparents and grandchildren will be looking for opportunities to learn together. One such example is the "Grandparents University" summer program at the University of Wisconsin. After two days of intensive indoor and outdoor activities together, participants reported that the experience had enhanced their relationship. More than 98 percent of the participants in the 2001 program noted their intent to return the following year.

Businesses and other organizations are waking up to the vast possibilities of catering to growing numbers of grandparents and grandchildren looked for shared activities. Elderhostel, a 25-year-old nonprofit educational organization for people over 55, now is planning educational trips for older adults who wish to bring along their grandchildren. They can choose from a wide range of activities, including stamp collecting, bird watching, hiking and touring museums around the world.

"Grandtravel" is a new commercial vacation travel program for grandparents and grandchildren who wish to share the pleasures of traveling together. Destinations are planned with school curricula in mind, and are both domestic and international. The agency does all the planning and teachers provide learning experiences along the way for the children.

Seagull Schools, a 30-year-old private, nonprofit corporation in Hawaii, plans to construct a $2 million intergenerational facility that will include a childcare center, an adult community center and a training center for senior adults interested in mentoring young people. It also will offer tourism programs and packages designed to attract grandparents and grandchildren looking for combined vacations.

Seagull Schools Director Chuck Larson says, "If were one of those grandparents, one of the places on the top of my list would be Hawaii. Because this is a resort area, it lends itself to a large variety of activities that could be adapted to meet different abilities and interests for both children and older adults."

Not everybody can go to Hawaii, nor do they have to. There are various resources closer to home that provide helpful suggestions for how to nurture the bonds between grandparents and grandchildren.

Just visit any bookstore; you are likely to find books such as "Grand Activities: More than 150 Fabulous Fun Activities for Kids to do with their Grandparents" by Shari Sasser (Career Press, 1999). Among the activities that emphasize family connections is "Comfy Genes," which involves looking at photos of family members from different generations and listing the origins of each of the child's facial features (for example, grandma's nose).

The "Connecting the Generations During the Holidays" program, developed by Penn State Cooperative Extension, focuses on things that can be done to strengthen family relationships during the holidays. At family get-togethers, stimulating topics for discussion include: earliest holiday memories, happiest holiday memories, thoughts about how holiday celebrations have changed over the years and philosophies about shopping and gift-giving during the holidays.

Another resource, "The Holiday Activity Kit — 2001," developed by the Something to Remember Me By Legacy Project, provides other family-strengthening activity ideas during the holidays. For a listing of these activities, see the Website http://www.tcpnow.com/holidaykit/intro.html.

A surefire way to help grandchildren and grandparents appreciate family stories and memories is the "oral history" interview. The interview can be focused on the grandparent's life experiences either in a general way, or with an emphasis on a particular theme (e.g., how people dressed) or historical event (e.g., Woodstock). Any tape-recording or written record of the interview should be treated as a valuable family keepsake.

Whether it is through travel, discussion or other activities, shared experiences are gratifying for both grandchild and grandparent. These experiences also help lay the groundwork for strengthening family, a benefit to be enjoyed by future generations. Each family has its own identity, traditions and rituals for celebrating family.

Give Children Time To Play Outside Every Day

Children need to run around and get their energy out. It's normal and natural for children to need a great deal of active play, such as running and climbing.

Make sure there is time to play outside every day and indoor active play when the children can't play outside. An extra 10 minutes outdoors may result in better behavior all day long.

The correct phone number for parents to receive the free video series, "I Am Your Child" is 1-800-986-2229. A feature story on the series appeared in the March 16th issue.

Dear Twig: I've been reading in the news about "the search for the ivory-billed woodpecker." What's an ivory-billed woodpecker, and what's the big deal about finding one?
The ivory billed woodpecker is a majestic, crow sized bird — black white and red with a crest and a whitish beak — that may or may not be extinct Scientists thought it was but now they're not sure A team of scientists recently went looking for ivory billed woodpeckers in one of the birds last known haunts the deep swamp forests of Louisiana They didn't see any But they found some possible evidence
And they heard loud signal taps" that sounded a lot like the signal taps of ivory bills
In the end the scientists said We have no proof for (the) presence of the bird in the area but think it might be there We recommend more searches Ivory bills were getting rare as early as 1900 Reason Habitat loss Their old growth forests were being cut down Now some of these places are protected so there's still a chance there are ivory bill out there Keep watching (and by

Ida Risser

Now that the sugar peas are up and growing, I can turn my mind to other things.

As I walk around the yard, I see large black buds on my two papaw trees and the rhubarb is really pushing stalks. Only two of my parsley plants survived the winter. But I think that will be enough for me to use in cooking. Even the dwarf roses lived through the winter and are starting to grow.

My pussy willow tree is growing too tall and I shall have to prune it so that I can reach the catkins. After the forsythia is finished blooming, it will have some branches removed too.

I've been reading through some of my old diaries in order to tell the grandchildren what their parents did when they were the children's age. It is interesting to see how very busy we were with six children all going different directions. In the 1960s we had two in college, two were teen-agers, and two were in elementary school. It was three different groups of children — all with very different interests.

It was shortly after this time that I began to write for Lancaster Farming. No wonder that I felt I'd always have something to write about.

My youngest sister's husband has begun to take a great interest in cooking. Twice in the last few months he has invited my sisters and I for a sumptuous breakfast. He not only cooks and serves the meal but he cleans up the kitchen afterward. They have a new kitchen in their Victorian-style house and it looks like a picture from a magazine.

Allen is still going to rehabilitation twice a week and very slowly getting better. His one leg is quite weak and it will probably take all summer to recuperate. Meanwhile, we do the best we can.

Scenes Behind Good Housekeeping Seal

LOU ANN GOOD
Food And Family
Features Editor

NEW YORK, N.Y. — For more than 90 years, consumers have purchased, with confidence, items marked with the Good Housekeeping Seal. The easily recognized logo guarantees a two-year warranty that the product has been evaluated and will perform as claimed.

Recently a bus-load of consumer science teachers and seamstresses from the Lancaster

County area toured the Good Housekeeping Institute to see how products are tested by in-house experts and exactly what happens behind the scenes of the prestigious institute.

The Institute is housed on three floors within the Hearst Building, 959 Eighth Ave., New York City. Many readers are familiar with the Good Housekeeping Magazine, which began in 1885 and continues in popularity — winning a top 10 placing in magazine ratings this year.

Sharon Franke, director and editor for food and appliances, said the magazine continues its original purpose to provide good advice to readers.

When the magazine was established in 1885, government regulations were not in place to control outrageous advertising claims. Later, many of the standards the government set to regulate products were those that Good Housekeeping helped set. This included establishing standard countertop heights.

Every product that carries the Good Housekeeping Seal has been evaluated at the Institute. Unlike Consumer Reports, the Institute does not report on all products. The Institute attempts to cut through the clutter and report on a few of the best value products for the average consumer.

This does not necessarily mean that the product is the best in the field, but that the Institute is satisfied that the product meets advertising claims and that it is affordable and offers a best value for the average consumer.

The Institute does not necessarily make public the results of products that do not meet advertising standards unless it is an obvious rip-off or danger to consumers.

A case in point are the advertising claims of some foods touted as low-calorie foods, which when tested sometimes contain three times the amount of fat and many more calories than labeled.

The Institute is working on establishing crib sheet standards since those tested come in many different sizes. Poor fitting sheets can come loose and entangle babies, and have resulted in a baby strangling to death while moving around when sleeping.

Clothing, carpeting, luggage bags, paper towels, and other fiber products are tested in the textile department. Carpeting is tested by rotating drums that are devised with simulated footsteps. This enables the institute to determine if the flooring will hold up in high traffic areas.

Clothing is washed five times and checked for shrinkage and color fastness. If the product has more than a five percent shrinkage, it is not approved.

The Institute's testing and results are reported on many television networks, with special features throughout the year on such programing as the Today Show and Dateline.

Food requires much testing to determine taste, nutritional value, and calorie claims. Much of this is conducted in the Institute's chemistry and food labs. But taste testing booths are also used. In these, participants are given food in a red-lighted booth that changes the color of the food so that testers are not influence by the color rather than the taste.

Cookware tests on 62 different sets of cookware were being evaluated during the tour. Standarized tests require that all steps are consistent on each set, including the type of range used and the cooking time.

Ever wonder how stain tests are conducted? At the Institute, a standard spinach mixture is used to test many products. This mixture is consistently difficult to remove and is used to test cleaners, detergents, and textiles. In these tests, the mixture is smeared on glasses, dishes, and textiles, and left set over night before it is removed.

Space is tight within the Institute. Plans are in progress to relocate the Institute to more spacious quarters within a year.

Delaware County Home Gardeners' School April 13

SPRINGFIELD (Delaware Co.) — Delaware County Master Gardeners host the sixth annual Home Gardeners' School Saturday, April 13.

Just a beginner, a weekend tiller or a dyed-in-the-wool avid gardener, which ever describes you, get down and dirty at the sixth annual Home Gardener's School, hosted by Penn State Cooperative Extension Master Gardeners, at the Penn State Delaware County campus on Route 352, one mile north of Granite Run Mall.

Find out how to attract birds and butterflies to your garden. Learn to coax ornamental vines around your home. Add color and spice to your life with variegated plants and ornamental grasses. Find out all about water gardening.

Laurie Anne Albrecht will share the secrets of birds and butterfly gardening. Rick Colbert "tells all" about ornamental grasses. Trust Kent Russell to provide plans for variegated plants that will have your landscape bursting with color. Andrew Bunting will present a list of irresistible vines for the home to spruce up the barest of gardens. Liz Ball winds it all up with lessons in water gardening including intriguing tricks of the craft.

Penn State soil test kits and literature will be offered for purchase. There will be an enticing array of gardening books by experts in the field and plants to slip right into your garden for sale.

Advance registration is required. For more information and to receive a registration form, please call Penn State Cooperative Extension at (610) 690-2655.

You ask ou answer

This column is for readers who have questions but don't know who to ask for answers.

"You Ask—You Answer" is for non-cooking questions. When a reader sends in a question, it will be printed in the paper. Readers who know the answer are asked to respond by mailing the answer, which will then be printed in the paper.

Questions and Answers to this column should be addressed to You Ask—You Answer, Lancaster Farming, P.O. Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522. Attention: Lou Ann Good.

Please clarify what question you are answering when responding.

Do not send a self-addressed, stamped envelope for a reply. If we receive the answer, we will publish it as soon as possible. Please include your phone number because we sometimes need to contact the person to clarify details. We will not publish your phone number unless you request it.

QUESTION — Margaret Marshall, Rochester Mills, wants the words to the poem, "Gossip the Barber," which she remembers was in a prose and poetry high school book in the 1940s.

QUESTION — Curtis Weaver, 1396 Creek Rd., Carlisle, PA 17013, has an Enterprize 2092 sausage stuffer and would like to buy a lard strainer basket and plate to fit inside. Anyone have a used one to sell or know where he can buy it new?

QUESTION — C. Faus, Hegins, has some questions about rhubarb stalks. She writes that in the fall, before frost kills the leaves, she harvests rhubarb stalks. The leaves will not feed the roots after they are killed by frost anyway. Some people say the stalks and leaves have poison in them at the that time of the year. Is this true? If so, why don't they have poison in them when harvested before June 21?

QUESTION — M. Nolt, East Earl, wants to know where she can purchase a cast iron 12- or 14-inch pizza pan similar to a Pizza Hut pan.

QUESTION — A reader writes that she remembers seeing an ad for wooden wagons offered by a vendor in Ohio in this paper. Now that she wants one, she can't find the ad, which she remembers was full page. Anyone able to help her?

QUESTION — Nine-year-old Alvin Stoltzfus collects business cards. He would like if people would send a few from their businesses or a collection of one if they no longer want it. Send to Alvin Stoltzfus, 1195 Mondale Rd., Bird-in-Hand, PA 17505.

QUESTION — Mary Montgomery, Doylestown, e-mail Grammonty1@aol.com, has a gardenia plant that she has kept in humid conditions since she received it nine months ago. It has a lot of new, green growth, but has never flowered. How can she help it to flower?

QUESTION — Amos Kauffman, 1860 Cambridge Rd., Honeybrook, PA 19344, is looking for a used Kitchen Center Oster mixer for parts. They are no longer manufactured, and the gears are worn in his.

QUESTION — Mary Davis is looking for simple goat milk soap recipe that uses ice cubes.

QUESTION — Ronald Strawbridge, Brogue, wants to know where to purchase cast aluminum name plates, cast on one side only.

QUESTION — Fred Guth, 515 East Freehold Rd., Freehold, N.J., would like information on wooden shallow well handpumps. Likely made of cedar in the the 1800s, they are six or eight feet long in four-inch square sections, bored, threaded, and porcelain-lined, with leather gaskets between sections. Guth's parents had one in use in the late 1920s.

QUESTION — Sam Parker, 2970 Welsh Rd., Mohnton, PA 19540, is looking for about 20 feet of greenhouse "8-mil" UV-protected plastic.

Join Bradford County's Dairy Promotion Team

TOWANDA (Bradford Co.) — An open house for all those interested in hearing more about the Bradford County Dairy Princess and Junior Representative Program will be conducted in Towanda, Saturday, April 13, from 1-4 p.m. at the Towanda Independent Baptist Church, York Avenue.

Representatives from the court will be there, along with parents and board members to answer questions.

To become a member of the Bradford County dairy princess team you must live in Bradford County, have a connection to the dairy industry such as being the relative of someone working in the agricultural field, or one that supports dairy farmers and their products including the sale of dairy products. Contestants may also qualify by being involved with these activities or owning 4-H or FFA animals or having served a previous year as a junior representative. Team members must be a user of real dairy products and be willing to learn more about dairy products in order to be an informed promoter, be between the ages of 12-24 (16 and older for princess), have parental consent if under 18, be single, never married, have no children, and must not marry or become pregnant during her reign.

Tioga County Pageant Is April 27

WHITNEYVILLE (Tioga Co.) — Plan to attend the Tioga County Dairy Princess Pageant, April 27, at the Whitneyville Fairgrounds. A milk punch reception opens at 6:30 p.m. and dinner at 7 p.m. The program includes the crowning of a new princess to represent Tioga County.

Tickets are $8 for adults and $5 for children. For reservations, call Betsy Derstine (570) 549-8193, Aggie Norman (570) 324-5631 or Craig Willaims (570) 724-9120.

POURED SOLID CONCRETE
STORAGE SYSTEM SPECIALISTS

START WITH THE BEST! POURED CONCRETE WALLS

You get about 40% more concrete for your dollar with a poured, solid concrete basement as compared to a hollow core block basement

A poured solid concrete basement weighs about 50 lbs more per cubic foot! Far denser What's more, poured solid concrete walls are monolithic there are no joints!

This is why laboratory tests show poured, solid concrete basements have many times the flexural and compressive strength to withstand the side and down pressures caused by earth, wind, water and building loads and the material density to resist water penetration

Best of all thanks to modern and efficient construction techniques poured solid concrete basements are competitively priced

Solid Concrete For:

- Manure Pit Walls
- Hog House Walls
- Barnyard Walls
- Chicken House Walls
- Retaining Walls
- House Foundation Walls
- Silage Pit Walls
- Cistern Walls
- Concrete Decks
- Concrete Pit Tops

Heat with Corn!

Burn Shelled Corn In This Biomass Furnace
A BETTER ALTERNATIVE
The corn burning furnace has many advantages over wood and coal heat. The large storage bin holds up to 14 bushels of fuel, which is automatically fed into the combustion chamber as needed. There's no need to load the furnace several times a day The use of corn also eliminates the bark mess, insects, splinters, and handling problems connected with the use of wood fuel, and the dust and dirt from coal UL Approved

Fiberglass Wheels & Springs - Upholstery Fabric
Powder Coated and Zinc Plated Carriage Parts
700 Country Lane, Paradise PA 17562 Fax Service (717) 627-7120

★ ★ New Products Now Available ★ ★

~ • The Advantages of the Fiberglass Wheels are: ~

Fiberglass Wheels

- Very Low Maintenance Costs
  These wheels are built to last a lifetime and beyond without ever having to replace any parts on the wheels under normal use. The only maintenance required will be tightening up or replacing the tire or rubber.
- High Performance Regardless of the Elements
  Wheels stay tight even in hot, dry conditions – No more loose rattling spokes – ever!
- Rugged Heavy Duty Design
  It takes a major accident or impact to break or twist these wheels.
- Hard Durable Surface
  Resists scuffs and scratches, paint job stays shinier.
- Easier Cleaning

~ • The Advantages of the Fiberglass Springs are: ~

Fiberglass Springs

- Lightweight
  A fiberglass spring weighs 22 lbs. less than a steel spring, 44 lbs. less weight on the carriage.
- Durable One Piece Design
- Better Performance With Heavy Loads
  The more weight, the better the ride, will not go flat and bottom out.
- No Rusting Ever
  Paint will not blister or peel off. No rust stains running out between the plys, providing a nicer appearance and much easier cleaning.
- A Lifetime Guarantee
  If these springs ever break under normal use, we will replace them free of charge.
- Stabilizer Kits – Now Available
  For a smoother ride and less bounce

Museum Charts Changing Bedroom Furniture Styles From 1650-1930

GAY BROWNLEE
Virginia Correspondent

NEW MARKET, Va. — At the Bedrooms of America museum located at 9386 Congress Street in the Lee-Jackson Building, bedroom furniture circa 1620-1920 is featured in 11 separate bedrooms.

The arrangements of authentic furniture depict periods and styles in American history and are accessorized with suitable bed coverings and wall coverings.

While the periods of furniture styles in America cannot be precisely pinpointed to the exact beginning and ending date in each, approximate dates have been established through research.

From the landing of the Pilgrims until approximately 1800, English furniture styles were used by the majority of early American settlers, who, after all, were still English subjects upon reaching opposite Atlantic Ocean shores. Furniture from the land of their nativity accompanied them. In later years, however, cabinetmakers devised variations of English styles.

Silk and satin coverings of bed frames were additions that hid bedsteads with a flowing regality, since William and Mary were the King and Queen of England. The period spanned 1689-1702 in England but lasted longer than that after its influence reached the colonies.

Queen Mary was a daughter of James the Second. She had a sister, Queen Anne who also had a furniture-style period named after her.

Although the Queen Anne room was restricted owing to renovations, the Queen Anne period was approximately 1745-1750. People favored the curved lines of Queen Anne, which gave the furniture greater elegance as opposed to the formal lines of William and Mary. Not only did the cabriole legs add grace to Queen Anne furniture, but also the rich mahogany wood. At the time mahogany was the principal wood and used increasingly, during the Queen Anne period.

From 1755-1785 was the period of Chippendale when the prevailing style was of consummate craftsman, Thomas Chippendale. Chippendale furniture featured the claw foot and the O-G foot. His furniture earned the reputation of being the finest ever made.

It is said Thomas Chippendale's name by general consent has been attached to the most splendid period of English furniture.

Meanwhile, George Hepplewhite was hard at work in London. His furniture in England rose to greatest popularity between 1780-1792.

In America, however, the style flourished around 1800, after the Revolutionary War. Hepplewhite furniture was lighter than the heavier Chippendale pieces and often had long graceful legs.

Thomas Sheraton was called "A champion of the straight line." Like Hepplewhite, he used inlay freely. Furniture called "Later Sheraton" have simple turned legs, notably on chests and stands. The Sheraton style in America was between 1795 and 1815.

Sheraton's work was so respected that he was regarded second only to Thomas Chippendale.

From approximately 1805 to 1840 the "Empire" period developed from French and English styles. It continued to the enduring Victorian period which spanned the years 1837 to 1901 and is sometimes considered to have had three parts.

The beds huge headboard and matching classic dresser dominate the high-ceilinged, airy apartment. Both pieces are mid-Victorian (1860 to 1870). The arrangement of furniture overall is combined to reflect parts of the entire Victorian era.

The comfortable Country Room is a depiction of homey furniture from no particular period. Most of the pieces were made on the farm or by a friendly neighbor who also happened to be a good carpenter.

Mass production brought in the Art Deco period when the bulk of furniture was manufactured in Grand Rapids, Michigan and sold by firms like Sears Roebuck. During the Great Depression, furniture was constructed with cheap veneers and laminated.

The bedrooms, themselves are found on the second floor of the imposing Lee-Jackson building. An interesting staircase curves at the top landing, providing the option of turning right or left to access the various displays. Another set of stairs with 17 steps exits down again.

Owner Benny Long, a native of New Market who has worked with antiques for decades, said when the 18th century structures existence was threatened with plans for demolition 20 years ago, he decided to purchase and restore it for historical preservation.

It had been built in three stages, the first part in 1765, then 1880, and in 1910.

Long believes Bedrooms of America is the nation's most unique concept in antique museums because it shows how furniture styles and tastes have changed through the passage of time.

The William and Mary bedroom highboy, left, is notable for legs with turnings shaped like a trumpet or an inverted cup. At right, cottage furniture was notable for bedroom sets painted and stenciled such as this piece.

Country furniture was often made on the farm or by a neighbor skilled in carpentry.

THE ANTIQUE DETECTIVE

Anne Gilbert

Portrait Miniatures Are Tiny Masterpieces

Art history can come in small sizes, but with big price tags. Such is the case with portrait miniatures where the wide range of subjects includes royalty, merchants, and eventually well-to-do tradesmen, military heroes, and statesmen. Prices are just as varied from $800 to well over $100,000. None the less compared to other paintings they are almost a bargain.

Some of the finest were done by well-known artists of the day and on enamel. When the subject is royalty and the artist a documented and well-known miniaturist the price goes up. However, portraits of royalty are relatively common and when the artist isn't recognized they can be under a thousand dollars. Portrait miniatures were especially popular as love tokens when the portraits were of beautiful women.

What makes them so fascinating to collectors are the historical details from hair style to clothing and jewelry, and knowing who the subject was.

Credit German artist Hans Holbein with the development of the portrait miniature. He began using water colors on vellum from 1532 to his death in 1543 These miniature portraits were called "limmings," which translates into "paintings on little."

British artist Nicholas Hilliard (1547-1619) is best known for his portraits of Queen Elizabeth 1 and as miniaturist to her court. However Christian Friedrich Zincke, born in Germany in 1683, came to England in 1706, and revived the art of enameling in England.

Antique Detective

Until the 18th century the portraits were painted with water colors on vellum. Their true beauty was brought was brought out in the early 1700s when water colors were used on ivory. The finest results were achieved by the mid 18th century when the paintings were done over an enamel process. Hence the term "portrait miniature enamels."

In America, portrait miniatures became vogue by the mid-18th century. Famed artists such as John Copley and Charles Wilson Peale used subjects who were not royalty but statesmen, military heroes, merchants, and the wives of these men.

Copley's miniatures were done on copper, ivory and wood. Examples can be seen at Colonial Williamsburg and other museums. British examples are in the Victoria and Albert Museum.

The style of portrait miniatures changed in the early 19th century in both England, America, and Europe. Darker, more opaque colors were used. With the introduction of photography, portrait miniatures went out of fashion.

CLUES: When portrait miniatures came to auction last year, prices were as low as $500 to several thousand dollars. However there are some perils and pitfalls when buying at antique shows, unless you know your dealer. Many are actually decals mounted on porcelain. A strong magnifying glass or jeweler's loupe is imperative.

The faker will have taken the trouble to add hand-painted details that will be raised and lead the buyer to believe the entire portrait has been hand painted. Another clue to those faked miniatures, usually from the Continent, is the aged and dated printed paper glued on the back of the enamel. Before paying too much have the seller remove the back.

Carefully examine for condition. Facing, mold, and water damage lower values no matter who did them or the subject. Pass up ivory miniatures with signs of cracks. When stored in an uneven temperature ivory miniatures can split.

Antiques Questions And Answers

This rustic old table is engraved on the side "From the old Fargo pine tree made in 1900." The old Fargo pine tree was a main stopover for the Wells Fargo in the 1860s. Any idea of value or where I can sell it?

J.B. - Orlando, FL

Can you tell me anything about this 24 piece tea set marked "Made in Japan?" The pieces have lots of gold and bright green, reds, etc.

Your Satsuma porcelain tea set was made before World War II, probably the 1920s, for export. It could sell in an antique shop for around $400.

Can you give me some information about this red (not ruby) glass pitcher and two water glasses, with large, painted white flowers? My grandmother was 82 in 1935 when she gave the set to me.

N.M.L. - Brackenridge, PA

Any idea of the value of this souvenir Walt Disney War bond? As you see it has color drawings of some of the most popular Disney characters. It was a Christmas gift from my father to me in 1944 and says, "United States Treasury War Finance Committee.

P.K.L. - Naples, FL

This picture is of an old glass creamer and spoon holder or sugar bowl has a blue, smokey and almost white color. Belonged to my great grandmother.

P.H. - N. Apollow, PA

Your late 19th century, shaded opalescent glass pieces are in the Spanish Lace pattern. The sugar and creamer set could sell in a shop for around $400.

University Researchers Seeking Alternative Uses For Soybeans

COLUMBUS, Ohio — There may be more uses for soybean oil than just as a food product.

Ohio State University soybean breeders are collaborating with researchers and industry representatives on a multi-university project to develop bio-based industrial materials using soybean oil rather than petroleum as the base product. Researchers from Purdue University, University of Missouri and Iowa State University are also involved.

"These is some effort in the industry right now to find alternative uses for vegetable oils. Oils like palm oil and soybean oil are kind of a glut on the food market, so the pressure is on to find some other uses for these products," said Steve St. Martin, an Ohio State soybean breeder. "The rationale behind the project is that with soybean prices being relatively cheap and petroleum prices being high, it may be beneficial to the farmers and the industry if we can find useful vegetable products that are also economically attractive."

The regional project is being funded through a $1.5 million U.S. Department of Agriculture Initiative for Future Agricultural and Food Systems (IFAFS) grant. Some products that will be tested using soybean oil include airplane deicers, polyurethane foams (found in such products as furniture, bedding, packaging, clothing and automotive) and heating fuel. Developing such products using petroleum can be expensive and exhibit undesirable environmental properties. Airplane deicers, for example, are toxic to mammals and, if they enter water sources as runoff, can kill aquatic organisms because they deplete the oxygen as they biodegrade.

St. Martin's role in the project, along with Ohio Agricultural Research and Development Center soybean breeder Ron Fioritto, is to provide research engineers soybean varieties that exhibit genetic characteristics applicable to development industrial products. In addition, the varieties must also produce high yields, adapt to Ohio soil conditions and exhibit disease resistance so as to be beneficial to growers.

Along with finding varieties that produce high yields and quality field characteristics, researchers are also measuring the amount of oil that can be extracted from a seed using a process known as extrusion.

"Oil is generally produced by extraction, where most of the oil is obtained by grinding and heating the soybean seed, using a solvent to dissolve the soybean oil away and then refining the solvent to get the pure oil," said St. Martin. "Extrusion is a process of squeezing the oil out, much like how a cider or olive oil press functions. No one has ever used this technique with some of these new types of soybeans that have these different oil properties."

So far, the researchers have sent four soybean varieties to Purdue to be tested, and the list continues to grow.

"We've shipped off a standard variety, two with high protein contents and one with a low linolenic acid content," said St. Martin. Soybean oils high in protein and low in linolenic acid have potential use in the food industry because of the health benefits and overall food preservation.

"If these varieties are found to be beneficial in developing industrial products, then they may be of more value," said St. Martin. "Soybean growers would have some advantage in growing the crop because the varieties have a special characteristic that would fetch a premium and have a market developed for it."

The Ohio State soybean breeding labs house several hundred soybean varieties that will be targeted for the project. "This is the business that we are in. It's what we are here for, to find a product that is useful," said St. Martin. "We are perfectly willing to fail nine times out of 10 if the 10th one is really good."

PennAg Industries Offers Virtual Tours On Website

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — PennAg Industries Association has recently updated their Website at www.pennag.com. The new site was developed to promote educational awareness about agriculture to the general public. "We want our Website to be the first thought in everyone's mind as the source for agricultural information," says Walt Peechatka, executive vice president of PennAg.

The new site was created specifically for those people not familiar with Pennsylvania agriculture. By simply clicking on News and Views, information is readily available on the latest breaking stories and headline news facing the agricultural industry.

"Sometimes events in the news are so powerful that they can literally change our buying and eating habits, affect the way we live and shape our thinking on important issues," states Mr. Peechatka. "Only through education can the industry expect the public to understand the challenges facing agriculture."

For people interested in seeing how a farm operates, they can click on the Virtual Tours. Chickens and pigs are shown in modern facilities. As you move your mouse around the tour, boxes of explanation pop up to give greater detail of the operations. Tours of egg and poultry processing plants are also offered on the site. Clicking on Educational Topics gives the viewer information on food safety, advanced agriculture, the environment, and legislative issues.

Vermeer Offers New Weapon For Accurate Bale Monitoring

PELLA, Iowa — Vermeer has taken bale-monitoring accuracy and control to the next level with their recent introduction of the Accu-Bale® Plus Bale Monitoring System.

The new, stylized Vermeer® Accu-Bale Plus Monitor is ergonomically designed, easy to read, easy to program and simple to install. The monitor's precision belt-sensing system gives operators extensive diagnostic data, along with the control and operating conveniences to produce high-density, square-shouldered bales without having to leave the tractor. It is the only monitor system in the field today that includes weather-proof sensor switches with self-diagnostic lights for greater reliability.

With the Accu-Bale Plus Monitoring System, an operator can set and adjust bale size (in inches or centimeters), adjust overfill settings, instantly switch from twine tie to net wrap, plus override the auto tie system with the twine tie system, all with just a push of a button.

Twine and net wrap settings are easily adjusted without reprogramming or scrolling through menus. Errors and malfunctions are instantly identified and diagnosed. The adjustable two-stage near-full/full bale warning system keeps the operator constantly aware of bale status as it approaches the typing/wrapping cycle. In addition, field count, total bale count and volume control settings for the alarm are also monitored.

Vermeer Accu-Bale Plus Monitor

The unique monitor design incorporates easy-to-read, tactile feedback control buttons into a heavy-duty injection-molded plastic casing. The recessed LCD window display makes it easy to monitor all systems, especially when encountering strong sunlight conditions.

Standard wedgeplate mounting hardware allows the unit to rotate and tilt for excellent access and visibility. Also available is standard vacuum cup mounting hardware, which adheres to any clean, flat surface, either in the cab or on the tractor.

New MF Compact Tractors Designed For Farm And Off-Farm Use

ATLANTA, Ga. — Massey Ferguson® compact tractors, ranging from 16.6 to 44.2 engine horsepower, now offer a wide range of new and improved features to handle heavy-duty applications for both agricultural and industrial users.

The wide selection of MF® implements include loaders, backhoes, mowers, rotary cutters, dozer blades, tillers, rakes, disc harrows, and box scrapers. Tire choices for industrial, turf or agricultural applications also increase the versatility of MF compact tractors.

The 1200 series compacts have three-cylinder indirect injection diesel engines. The 44.2 hp MF 1165 uses a four-cylinder diesel. Indirect injection provides a smoother burn, less diesel "knock," and reduced stress on crankshaft and bearings for increased engine life.

Mechanical, synchro shuttle, powershuttle and hydrostatic transmissions are available for MF compact tractors, depending on the model. 6F x 2R and 9F x 3R mechanical transmissions offer a simple proven design with a good range of working speeds, and long service life at a value price. A 16F x 16R Synchro Shuttle transmission has a wide selection of usable ground speeds with a forward/reverse shuttle for easy direction changes and a creeper gear for specialty applications. A 16F x 16R PowerShuttle transmission provides rapid direction changes in loading operations without using the clutch pedal.

All MF compact tractors are equipped with either a live, transmission driven rear 540 rpm PTO, or a rear independent, electro-hydraulic actuated 540 rpm PTO operated by an easy-to-engage switch at the steering column. The live, transmission-driven rear PTO keeps running when the tractor is stopped a useful feature in applications that require frequent stops and direction changes. The electro-hydraulic independent rear PTO provides smooth, easy engagement and complete control of implements.

A forward-facing mid-mounted PTO is standard on some models, optional on others, and will accommodate both front and mid-mount implements. The mid-mount PTO is either live or independent, depending on the transmission.

Massey Ferguson compact tractors, 16.6 to 44.2 HP, offer new and improved features to handle heavy-duty jobs for agriculture and industrial users.

New Holland's TC30 Compact Tractor Provides High Performance At Budget Price

NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster Co.) — The new, three-cylinder, 30-hp TC30 compact tractors from New Holland deliver a wide variety of high-performance features at a budget price. The TC30 can be customized with a choice of transmissions, two-wheel drive or front-wheel drive axle, and other features to match customer needs.

The TC30 is an economical workhorse that can be equipped with a hydrostatic (automatic) transmission or manual gear transmission. With the hydrostatic transmission, the operator chooses the appropriate range and a simple heel-toe pedal allows the operator to adjust speed and direction with no shifting or clutching required. It's ideal for mowing applications with a mid-PTO standard equipment on hydrostatic models. Hydrostatic power steering is standard.

If the operator's work tends to stay in a single gear, the 9 by 3 mechanical transmission offers three ranges for more gear choices than the competitive 8 by 2 transmissions usually found in tractors in this price range. This provides more choices and greater flexibility in working speeds.

The TC30 is available with the choice of a heavy-duty two-wheel drive (2WD) axle or front-wheel drive (FWD) axle for superior pulling power and maximum fuel efficiency in slippery or sandy conditions.

High-capacity live hydraulics, delivering 6.1 gpm, coupled with a heavy-duty rear axle, provides a three-point hitch lift of 1,635 pounds — double the lift capacity of some competitive tractors. This hefty three-point hitch lift capacity allows the TC30 to handle heavier, wider implements with ease. The generous hydraulic flow provides fast cycle times and plenty of flow to operate a loader, blade or other hydraulically powered implements.

The TC30 is designed with a roomy operator station. The mechanical transmission shift lever is on the dash, not the floor, so the deck is wide open. The muffler is under the hood, not in the line of sight, so the view is unobstructed. Convenient access to service points makes refueling and routine maintenance easy.

An Operator Presence Safety System will shut down the engine if the operator attempts to exit the tractor when the transmission is not in neutral and the parking brake is not engaged.

PennAg Industries Sponsors Pesticide Recertification Conference

HARRISBURG (Dauphin Co.) — PennAg Industry Association, in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, recently sponsored their annual Pesticide Recertification Seminar at the Lancaster Host Resort in Lancaster. The seminar provided required annual training to 110 commercially licensed pesticide operators (CPOs).

CPOs must complete continuing education requirements to renew their pesticide application license. The continuing education consists of general (core) education and specific (category) education in each area for which the CPO is licensed. Licensees need six core credits and up to 10 category credits every three years.

The Pesticide Recertification Seminar is scheduled for February next year. If you are interested in receiving information about the seminar at that time, please contact Sam Sherk, assistant vice president of PennAg Industries Association, at (717) 651-5920.

Agco Expands ST Compact Tractor Line

ATLANTA, Ga. — Two new Agco ST compact tractors, the ST35x and ST40x, with 33 and 40 engine horsepower respectively, expand the ST line to eight models and give prospective owners new options in affordable power and performance.

"We've found that grounds maintenance companies, light contractors and rental yards want tractors that have all the necessary basic features, are durable, and, most important, at a price that is easy on their budget," points out Phil Jones, general marketing manager. "These two new x-series tractors join our very popular ST30x model in delivering the features and value demanded by professionals as well as discriminating homeowners."

The new models are both powered by 1.5-liter, three-cylinder, liquid-cooled, diesel engines that deliver maximum horsepower at only 2,600 engine rpm for low noise and vibration, and long engine life. A turbocharger on the ST40x produces an extra seven horsepower over the naturally aspirated ST35x.

Like all the ST tractors, the new X-models come standard with four-wheel drive, differential lock and a choice of R1 ag, R3 turf or R4 industrial tires. Both models feature a flat, open deck for comfort and easy access from either side. Power steering and spring suspension seats add to the comfort and ease of operation.

The tractors feature an 8 by 8 SynchroShuttle transmission that lets you change directions with a simple push of the clutch and flip of a dash-mounted lever. Independent 540-rpm PTO is standard and a 2,000-rpm mid-PTO is optional. A category-1, three-point hitch features position control with optional top-link draft sensing. Auxiliary remote hydraulics are optional.

Agri-Services Agency Hires Manager For Workers Comp Unit

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Janice Klodowski recently joined Agri-Services Agency as the Workers' Compensation product manager. Agri-Services Agency, a subsidiary of Dairylea Cooperative, is one of seven business units created to provide farmers with services and resources to enhance their businesses.

In this newly created position, Klodowski provides technical, operational, and marketing leadership to the agency's workers' compensation product line. She brings more than 20 years of experience in underwriting, sales and marketing to the position.

She earned a master's degree in business administration from LeMoyne College and a bachelor's degree in marketing from Syracuse University.

HESSTON
The Cutting Edge In Disc Mower Conditioners

Hesston 1340 Pull-Type Mower Conditioner

Hesston mower conditioners are known for delivering clean, fast cuts in the field and being able to work in tough conditions. These machines were the first mower conditioners that allow you to cut on either side of the tractor, cut square corners with no knuckle-rap, or maneuver around field obstacles with a disc cutterbed machine.

- 12' Cutting Width
- Eight Cutting Discs
- Center-Pivot Maneuverability
- Rubber-On-Steel Conditioning Rolls
- 3 Point Swivel Hitch Option
- 1000 RPM Drive

Hoober Support

Hoober's parts and service departments have 15 years experience working with these mower conditioners. All three of our locations are registered Hesston dealers, and our experienced hay and forage specialists will keep you running strong.

Complete hay control starts at the pickup. Hay is gathered and precompressed before it reaches the bale chamber... for more-solid bales. Gear-and shaft-driven knotters adjust to different twines and crops. Easy to service, too.

NEW! Vermeer 554XL Baler:

This is the baler that loves to eat hay!

Cut-Out Clutch Protection
No more burnt or hot discs to wrestle with Greater protection for those times when your baler's pulling harder on the outside rows, the tractor's overpowered, or you accidentally overfill when trying to bale that last strip of hay

Here's why:

- 5-bar pickup handles bigger windrows, faster speeds.
- Simple, horizontal bale-starting system is designed for fast starts.
- Bottom drum design lets you pull in hay faster, often allowing you to drive a full gear faster.
- Best HaySaver Wheels in the field
- Up to 1200 lbs. in a single 65" dia. x 48" wide package; 2000 lb. capacity with silage baler option.
- Silage option lets you bale wet or dry without changing a thing
- Makes bales 17% larger* than a standard 5' dia. x 4' wide baler at virtually the same price! ****

 determined by comparing volume measurement of a standard 60" dia. x 48" wide bale versus a 65" dia. x 48" wide Vermeer bale*

Vermeer

Check it out! 17% more bale size than standard 5' x 4' bales

"I'm impressed with the heavy construction of the Roto Mix mixer and the accuracy of the electronic scale."
- Joe Kauffman, Mill Manager, G&G Feed, Manheim, PA

G&G Feed, a commerical feed mill, needed a way to mix rations better and faster. Some mixes were taking up to 2 hours!

In 1999 the company bought a 420-12 Roto Mix mixer from Lapp's Barn Equipment. Now those rations take only minutes. And according to mill manager Joe Kauffman, "a 1,000 lb. mix for calves gets mixed as well as a full load of 8,000 lbs. for a larger dairy."

G&G specializes in mixing custom dairy rations for dairies with 115 cows and more. They average 200 tons of custom mixes per week. Any given mix can consist of up to 15 different ingredients plus 100 lbs. of molasses per ton.

If you have any questions about how well the Roto Mix mixer can mix feed, call Joe at G&G Feed, Manheim, PA (717) 665-6122. A good time to call Joe is before 9:00 a.m.

MODEL F-17B DOUBLE OFFSET TANDEM

AMCO's Model F-17B double offset tandem disk harrows range in size from 9'3" to 15'0" and are ideal for use with tractors ranging from 50 to 95 horsepower.

These dependable double offset harrows weigh from 296 to 337 pounds per cutting foot and are available in 9'3", 10'6", 12'0", 13'6", and 15'0" models.

Built AMCO tough, the Model F-17B double offsets have the same quality features you expect from AMCO implements. Depending upon size, the Model F-17B is equipped with eight or twelve regreasable ball type, toggle-mounted bearings featuring AMCO's Protect-O-Shield®; 1-1/2" square, high-carbon, cold rolled steel axles; reversible clevis and heavy-duty scrapers with high-carbon replaceable blades. The Model F-17B has standard 22" plain blades on 9" spacing and on the rear gang features diminishing blades with 16" feathering blades. A gang bolt wrench is also standard.

The Model F-17B has AMCO's optional Shock Absorber Gang Riser which allows the gang on the harrow to move upward and back to relieve shock when the disk blades encounter an obstacle in the ground.

Specifications subject to change without notice.

YOUR LIVESTOCK IMPLEMENT LINE

Cut Your Fields Down To Size!

Disc Mower Conditioners

| Model | DC2412 | DC2415 | DC2418 |
|---|---|---|---|
| Cutting Width | 11' 7" | 15' 1" | 17' 9" |
| Cutting Discs | 9 | 12 | 14 |

- Wide conditioning rolls for uniform, fast drying.
- Full-width skid shoes protect the cutterbar.
- Simple drive system for more reliability.
- Change from windrow to swath in seconds - without tools.

TMR "Total Mix" Mixer Feeders

"Total Mix" TMR mixer feeders let you mix more long-stemmed hay into your ration - up to 30% by weight depending on hay type and moisture content.

- "Hay - slicer auger" - Incorporates knife assemblies into the two bottom augers.
- Better mixing action - Four-auger design creates a double figure - 8 mixing pattern for fast and complete mixing of all feed ingredients.
- Energy efficient - Planetary drive system requires less horsepower.
- Built to last - Patented star couplers absorb shock loads by allowing the bottom augers to flex, providing long service life.
- Five sizes - 150 to 455 cubic feet capacities.

WARNING, ALL SILO OWNERS

Check your silo now for rotten staves. If you have been using your silo for 10 to 15 years for either corn silage or haylage, it is time to SHOTCRETE

RESURFACES INTERIORS:
- Coats the silo's interior
- Protects feed in storage
- Durable, tough, acid-resistant
- Increase useful life
- Economical

Before The silo s interior with plaster damage and stave exposed

After The surface is reconditioned and a new, thick tough surface will protect stored feed

REPAIRS HOLES:
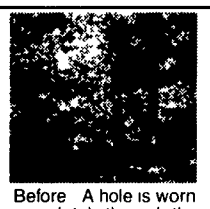
- Repairs even large holes
- Up to twice the strength of the original stave
- Rapid application
- Durable surface



Before A hole is worn completely through the silo wall

After With the hole repaired by ShotCrete and a new surface applied the silo is ready for years of use

EXTENDS USEFUL LIFE:
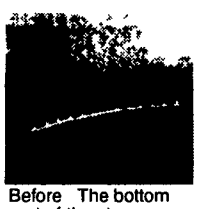
- Support for old foundations
- Special repairs can be made... quickly and economically
- Little or no forming needed
- Stronger than the original



Before The bottom part of the staves are completely worn away

After The ShotCrete System repairs and replaces the missing structure

What's against soft paint?
In metal roofing and siding some manufacturers use soft pliable paint to prevent cracks. The disadvantage with softer paint is that it scratches so easy. Handling during erection, flying debris during storms, children playing against it, etc. can easily scratch softer paint. Scratches on softer paints tend to rust prematurely. Everlast heat forms to prevent this. Ask our competition if they heat form. It's important.

Having Problems Getting Milk Cold?

Consider a Mueller pre-cooler. It's an excellent way to lower the cost of cooling milk. It reduces milk temperature with water pumped straight out of your well. Mueller® precoolers are available in sizes to work with any system. If lower electric bills would make your life easier, call us and ask for more information on Mueller precoolers.

- Features grower to-grower direct seed sales
- S.D.S.U. tested and researched
- Distributed from Parkesburg, PA
- $1.55/per lb. in 60 lb. bags
- Varieties: S.D. Common, Vernal, and Rhyzoma
- Dakota alfalfas are dormancy rated at 2 and proven to excel in winter hardiness and production!
- Trask Seed is American grown and priced to reflect no corporate monopolies!

PA farmers have great hay crops with South Dakota alfalfa seed. Painterland Farms, Westfield, PA, John Painter said "The Trask's seed grew extremely well. We recommend it to anyone. It is real leafy and yielded as well as any of the high priced name brand seeds. It cost 40% as much. We planted 294 acres. We intend to plant more this spring. It was exceptionally winter hardy and resisted frost damage. We are very pleased.

Join the numerous farmers in the PA/NY area harvesting superb alfalfa from South Dakota seed

OPTIONS IN FEEDING
Your Dairy Herd
Call us today for a feeding program built to fit your Dairy Herd and your Production Goals.

For maximum performance and income over feed cost, rations should be balanced to provide the optimum levels of degradable and undegradable protein, nonstructural and structural (fiber) carbohydrate as well as minerals and vitamins. This allows for maximum utilization of the rumen microbes and total ration efficiency. Because your needs may be different from your neighbor's, we adjust the following nutrients and ingredients to fit your needs and goals.

- Amino Acids
- Protein
- By-Pass Protein
- Energy
- Fiber
- Calcium
- Phosphorus
- Salt
- Vitamins & Trace Minerals
- Organic Trace Minerals
- Multi-Protein Sources
- Added Animal Fat
- Rumen Inert Fats
- Buffers
- Yeast
- Zinpro

FARM FOR SALE

The United States of America, acting through the Farm Service Agency will sell the following described property:

North Side of Central Avenue, Block 2601, Lots 6, 7 and 10, Pittsgrove Township, Salem County, – 26.98 acres ±, approximately 81% Tillable. Sales Price $97,000.

The property is being offered for sale to those individuals Farm Service Agency (FSA) considers to be qualified beginning farmers, and all prevailing claimants in the civil action Pigford vs. Glickman. Qualifying beginning farmers who are prevailing claimants will be given first priority consideration in the purchase of this property. If more than one beginning farmer who is a prevailing claimant submits an application, priority within this group will be determined by lottery. Qualified beginning farmers must be in need of FSA credit assistance either in the form of direct FSA financing, and FSA guaranteed loan or a participation loan. For other requirements and information on how to qualify as a beginning farmer, you may contact your local FSA office.

All other interested parties should submit a sealed bid (Form 1955-46), with a 10% refundable deposit by the deadline. (The full deposit will be returned should the bidder not be selected). If no beginning farmer or prevailing claimant is selected, sealed bids will be considered.

Offers must be in writing and submitted on the appropriate form, which is included in the bid packet. All interested persons should pick up a bid packet at the Cumberland County FSA office. Bids will be accepted until 2:30 p.m. on April 18, 2002. The government reserves the right to cancel the sale at any time and the right to reject any and all offers. If no acceptable bids are received, FSA reserves the right to enter into negotiations with interested parties without further public notice.

Note: Inspection of the property has determined that the property contains an underground storage tank (UST). A copy of the environmental review of the property may be reviewed at the local FSA office. The property is being sold in "AS IS" condition.
